FOES PRESSING FOR FURTHER MODIFICATION

Opponents of Crop Measure Victorious In First Test of New Deal Plan.

THREATENS PROGRAM

Wheat Marketing Quota Out, Proponents See Collapse of Agricultural Bill.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Opponents of compulsory crop control, victorious in their first house test, proposed today further modifications which some administration leaders said would wreck the farm program.

The house voted tentatively, 85 to 76, to eliminate from the farm bill a section imposing farmer-approved marketing quotas for wheat whenever surpluses might lower prices.

Rep. Coffee (D., Neb.), who suggested the change, said he would attempt the same procedure when the compulsory corn control section is discussed.

Wants Cotton Change.

Rep. Kleberg (D., Tex.) offered another amendment, on which action was deferred, to modify the control provisions for cotton.

Administration leaders will try to overturn the wheat decision and any other changes when a final vote is taken—perhaps Thursday on the entire bill.

"We're just began to fight," said Chairman Jones (D., Tex.) of the agriculture committee.

During discussion yesterday of Coffee's wheat amendment, Jones declared that without the marketing provisions wheat prices would collapse.

Coffee, however, contended the wheat marketing quotas were unquestionably unconstitutional. He described as "confiscatory" the penalty tax of 15 cents a bushel for sale of any wheat produced above quota limitations.

Senate at Work.

Rep. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) asserted that the farm bill, if enacted, "spells Hitlerism" for the United States.

The senate, meanwhile, was voting even more slowly on dozens of amendments. Senators who helped frame the "ever-normal granary" measure predicted a final vote late this week, but critics insisted that it may not be reached until next week, if then.

Health Board Clears Room, Talks on Milk

Hears Distributors' Protest, Then Conducts 'Private Business.'

Behind closed doors—after opposition had been registered by the Richland County Raw Milk Producer-Distributors association—the Mansfield Board of Health last night gave a second reading of an ordinance that calls for complete pasteurization of the city's milk supply.

Following the presentation of a resolution by producer-distributors opposing the mandatory measure, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner and secretary of the board, requested that the room in which the public meeting was held, be cleared "so the board might conduct some private business."

Audience Files Out.

While members of the association and the audience filed out, two members of the health department, not members of the board of health, remained. They were Dr. Paul Baird, assistant public health commissioner and Douglas Griffin, health board sanitary engineer.

Voting members of the board at the meeting were Dr. R. R. Black, Atty. J. H. Gongwer, Dr. K. E. Buhr, E. R. Aderman and Glenn L. Bierly. Mayor Earl A. McFarland, a non-voting member is ex-officio chairman and Dr. Rehder, another non-voting member, is the secretary.

An inspection of the minutes after the meeting disclosed that the bill had been given a second reading and that the only dissenting vote had been cast by Glenn L. Bierly, lone Republican member of the five-man board.

Mayor McFarland after the meeting said that the "closed session" was a little irregular in the matter of public business.

"It is the first time that I have ever attended a meeting of the board that was held behind closed doors," he said.

He admitted that the meeting was public business and that it should be open to anyone who cared to attend.

Waits Third Reading.

The bill, which will outlaw all raw milk within the city, is scheduled to be passed when it is given a third and final reading at the next meeting of the board. Provisions in the measure call for the invoking of the ordinance April 1.

Before the "closed session" began, board members and representatives of the producer-distributors engaged in a discussion lasting an hour over the measure that has been an issue for the past four months.

USE LADDERS TO REACH KEY CHINESE CITY

Capital's Defenders Close Gates, Prepare For Last Stand Behind Barrier.

KAI-SHEK, WIFE LEAVE

Nippon's Main Regiments on Way to Join Advance Units at Doomed City.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Advance columns of Japanese troops assailed Nanking's historic walls tonight.

Japanese officers who announced the attack said a spearhead of the invaders was attempting to climb the city's massive battlements with scaling ladders—a maneuver handed down through the Middle Ages.

Gates of the apparently doomed city were closed. Chinese had started a final stand which seemed destined to fail.

Main Forces on Way.

Japanese asserted that their main forces had not yet reached the city but added that they were "progessing satisfactorily and according to schedule."

The spokesman did not say how soon he expected the fall of the one-time fountainhead of nationalist China.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, China's leader, had left Nanking, Chinese advices disclosed. He and [illegible] airforce, were said to have departed by airplane for Nanchang, capital of the interior province of Kiangsi. The government evacuated two weeks ago.

Meager foreign dispatches trickling through from Nanking confirmed Japanese reports that Nippon's warplanes had pounded the city with bombs. These advices, however, did not mention the extent of casualties or damage.

Japanese had asserted that 90 planes raided the city in the most intensive bombardment of the war thus far.

Bomb Valley Towns.

The raids apparently were aimed at military objectives in the city's environs. Japanese claimed their airforce had struck at towns and cities of the lower Yangtze valley as far as Nanking, deep in Anhwei province, destroying airfields, aircraft, and military equipment.

The Chinese boom at Kiangyin, blocking Japanese warships from an attack on Nanking, remained intact. Japanese previously had reported its destruction.

Japan's grip on Nanking tightened early today. Then the Japanese reported they had blocked all exits from Nanking on the south while a spearhead unit thrust toward the Yangtze rivers which curves around the city's western and northern fringes.

Adds New 'Fuel' to County Fair Wrangle

Head of Horse Breeders Association Says Fair Board Rejected Plan to Include Horse Show and Bolster Program.

Reiterating charges that seven directors chosen by the Richland County Agricultural society were elected illegally, the Richland County Horse Breeders association today provided new ammunition for the controversy that flared between the two groups at Saturday's meeting of the fair board at the courthouse.

In a statement, signed by H. K. Lehnhart, president of the Horse Breeders association, the fair board was accused of turning down the association's proposal that a horse show be included in the fair program.

"We have been trying to get co-operation with the board on a certain department (horse show) which has always been badly neglected in this county," the statement said.

Says It Would Help.

Lehnhart contended that a showing of horses bred in the county would add interest to the annual exposition.

The horse breeders' association is understood to have argued with the fair board last year over the proposed horse show. The exposition's horse show this year dwindled to a few animals.

OKLAHOMA CITY—(U.P.)—Doris June Aikman, who first noticed the sand falling on her school desk but didn't know what it meant, was the most seriously injured of 15 children upon whom the ceiling collapsed in the 4-A grade room at the Westwood school.

The school was closed today for an investigation. Three children, including Doris, were in a hospital, badly hurt, and 12 others suffered from shock and bruises or were cut by the strands of wire that had re-enforced the plaster.

There were 36 pupils in the room yesterday afternoon. Their ages range from 9 to 11 years. They are mostly from families of industrial workers. It was 40 minutes before dismissal time when the ceiling fell.

Brady Gunman's Attorneys to Seek Life Imprisonment.

HAMMOND, Ind. — (AP) — Defense Attorneys C. B. Tinkham and Timoty B. Galvin said today they would ask that James Dalhover, last of the Brady gunmen, be given a life sentence for his confessed part in the slaying of State Policeman Paul V. Minneman last May 25 near Royal Center, Ind.

Dalhover pleaded guilty three weeks ago to murder in flight from the robbery of the Goodland (Ind.) state bank.

A federal jury was sworn in here late yesterday to decide Dalhover's punishment.

The defense attorneys emphasized in questioning jurors that the minimum penalty for the crime was ten years' imprisonment.

Tinkham contended that Dalhover's guilty plea "doesn't mean he actually shot the gun."

PILLS KILL BABY

Coroner Says Infant Swallowed 90 From Lost Bottle.

AKRON—(AP)—A bottle of pills, lost for nearly a year, was blamed today for the sudden death of Dale Kenneth Stimely, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee H. Stimely.

MYSTERY VEILS 'KIDNAP' CASE

Rich New Yorker Listed as 'Missing Person'; Rumors of Abduction Persist.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. — (AP) — Police listed Arthur Fried, office manager for a sand and stone company, as a "missing person" today, but beneath-the-surface reports of a kidnaping and a ransom note persisted.

Fried's disappearance Saturday night was announced yesterday. He attended a movie with members of his family, visited his mother and then disappeared. His car was found outside a roadhouse two hours after his wife had notified police.

Chief of Police William Miller said "so far as our investigation is concerned, Fried still is a missing person, nothing more. . . . We have no ideas about it."

Henry Fried, brother of the missing man, asserted it was "just a question of a little family trouble and that's all," while Mrs. Harold Daniels, a sister, said, "I believe it's nothing but a drink too many."

Harold Daniels said Fried "was on a little spree" Saturday night. "None of us believe Arthur has been kidnaped."

Daniels also quoted Hugo Fried, another of Arthur Fried's five brothers, as saying he "knows absolutely nothing about a ransom note of any kind or that he has contacted any person connected with this supposed kidnaping."

LINDYS KEEP PLANS GUARDED

Remain at Morrow Estate Till Interest in Visit Subsides.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. — (U.P.) — Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh surrounded their movements today with the same secrecy that accompanied their arrival in the United States Sunday on the liner President Harding.

It was believed they would remain at the estate of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, until interest in their visit had subsided, and then the colonel would attend to business matters requiring his attention as technical adviser to Pan-American Airways.

Many reports were circulated concerning the couple's plans. One was that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, sr., a Detroit school teacher, would come here to see her son.

Here's Big News—There'll Be 2 Can Matinees Saturday

Big news for little ears! There will be TWO can matinees Saturday morning—those free picture shows where all a fellow needs to get in is a can of food.

Saturday morning both the Ritz and the Majestic theaters will give special programs, and the two managers, Sol Bernstein and Wayne Williams, are vying with each other to get features that will appeal to the boys and girls of Mansfield.

When the Madison theater was packed by more than a thousand youngsters last Saturday, it was decided that neither the Ritz nor Majestic alone was big enough to hold the enthusiastic patrons this week. The programs will be announced later in the week, and boys and girls—and adults, too—can take their choice. The following Saturday, Dec. 18, the Ohio will have the last of the series of matinees.

The canned fruit and vegetables will be given out to needy families at Christmas.

COLD TO STAY

More Snow Due Tonight and Tomorrow, Forecast.

Winter still had Mansfield in its grip today, and the forecast indicated that it didn't plan to let go right away—at least not until after tomorrow.

There'll be more snow tonight and Wednesday and Wednesday will be colder, the prediction said.

The highest point the mercury reached yesterday was 20, according to Observer Otto Sprunger, which was only five degrees above the low for the 24-hour period. Three-quarters of an inch of snow fell, making the total for the past two days about 2½ inches.

At 10:30 a. m. today, the mercury stood at 18. The sun was out at intervals during the day, which made it seem a bit warmer.

FIND RECLUSE NEARLY FROZEN

Mansfielders Discover Aged Butler Township 'Hermit' Bed-ridden, Alone.

Found near death from hunger and cold by friends who were forced to break into his house, E. L. Boyd, 85-year-old Butler township "hermit" today was recovering under the care of a physician and two attendants hired by the township trustees.

The aged recluse, who has lived alone in a small house 18 miles north of Mansfield for a number of years, was found Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Bryant, of Mansfield when they went to take food to him.

Obtaining permission from the Richland county sheriff's office to enter the locked house, they pried the door open and found the aged man alone in the house with a baby pig which was squealing its discomfort from cold and hunger.

There had been no heat in the house for three days, it was learned, and a basket of food, left on the doorstep Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Bryant, was undisturbed.

Boyd, who is said to be subject to sinking spells, had gone to bed Friday and when the covers fell off him had been too weak to draw them back over his body.

Butler township trustees summoned a physician and employed Dudley Stimple and James Paxton to care for the aged man and his farm of about 12 acres. Boyd's son also was called from Medina.

The house where Boyd has lived for a number of years is in an isolated section of the township.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The late Francis F. Prentiss, 78, Cleveland industrialist and philanthropist, left an estate valued at $8,440,680, an inventory and will on file in probate court showed today.

Under the will, the largest benefactor is St. Luke's hospital, of Cleveland, whose share based on present market values would exceed $4,000,000. Approximately $600,000 each is bequeathed to Case School of Applied Science, Western Reserve university and the Cleveland museum of art.

PICK OUT BANDIT

At least two victims in a recent hold-up today had identified photographs of an ex-convict, who was recently released from one of the larger mid-western prisons, as one of the two gunmen who had robbed them.

The victims, one a woman, told police that they were sure of the identity of one of the bandits, but could not remember the other's face.

Meanwhile Police Chief Meade K. Bates was still out of the city on a clue, which he said concerned the two men who held up and robbed the Franklin Finance company of $150 last Saturday and then escaped through a police barrier.

Bates, who left hurriedly at noon yesterday, declined to reveal his destination.

Lost In Tunnels Of Old Mine For 2 Days, Escapes

PINCKNEYVILLE, Ill.—(U.P.)—Lawrence Lee, 28, lost in a maze of treacherous passageways of the old Briar Hill mine for two days, found a long-forgotten escape exit today and climbed to the surface.

Apparently he was uninjured by his experience.

"I sure am glad to be out," was all he said as excited friends rushed him home.

Edgar Newsom, treasurer of the old Briar Hill company said Lee's escape was "miraculous."

"There wasn't one chance in a thousand of him finding his own way out."

Lee and John Ingram went into the mine Sunday morning to weigh out some coal for a boiler furnace. They returned to the surface, then Lee, with a small carbide lamp, went back alone to pick up some empty dynamite powder cans to use for coal shuttles.

LOCKED IN ROOM

Office Employes Menaced as Robbers Flee With Gems.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Three unmasked robbers, two of them armed, staged a during holdup today in the heart of the Grand Central district, in mid-town Manhattan.

The bandits locked the assistant manager and a woman cashier of the Ohio Finance Co., on the sixth floor of an office building on Forty-second street just off Fifth avenue in a closet and fled with $525.

Police Have Own 'Check-Off' System—Just Try to Get Traffic Tag 'Fixed'

Tickets Numbered, Record Shows Disposition of Every One.

Mansfield police today had inaugurated a "check-off" system—not the labor union kind, but one all of their own design—that makes the "fixing" of traffic tickets practically impossible.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the new system was instituted so that every one of the serially numbered tickets can be accounted for.

When an officer takes out a bundle of tickets, the serial numbers are recorded and charged against him in the files.

When the stub of the summons is turned into the traffic bureau at the end of each shift, Patrolman H. G. Palmer, in charge of the records, notes the return date in the file.

But the procedure doesn't stop there—there still is another column on the long sheet—and that one is of greatest interest to the chief.

It is labeled "disposition"—meaning what happened to that little yellow ticket that was hung on the door knob or windshield of your car by an officer when he found you parked too close to a fire plug, too far from the curb or parked too long in a restricted street.

Was it paid. If so, when? If not, why? And Bates will be able to learn the answer at a glance, because the recording officer's number also will be there.

If a ticket is made void, that also must be recorded as well as the reason.

Chief Bates said the system was inaugurated for the purpose of keeping every ticket on record so that state examiners can check the police department records with a minimum of effort.

Tide Is Nation's Leading Grid Team

Alabama Picked in Associated Press Survey to Head List of Great Elevens That Includes Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Figured solely on the won and lost records, the nation's No. 1 college football team for the last five-year stretch is Alabama's Crimson Tide, prospective rival for California in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena on New Year's day.

An Associated Press survey of the records for the seasons of 1933-37 inclusive, today revealed Frank Thomas' Tuscaloosa Terrors at the head of the parade of more than 100 of the country's leading college outfits.

Alabama Wins 40.

During that time, Alabama has piled up 40 victories against only three defeats and three ties for a winning percentage of 930 with ties disregarded. The Tide, in fact, has gone undefeated through the last two seasons—18 games without a setback and with only one tie.

Impressive as is this record, Alabama maintains only a slight edge over its two closest rivals, Minnesota's Gophers and the Pitt Panthers. Beaten twice this year, Minnesota nevertheless has lost only three games in five years while winning 33 and tying four for a percentage of .917. Pitt, the nation's No. 1 array for 1937, has won 40 games, lost four and tied four (including three consecutive draws with Fordham) for a .909 average.

Should Alabama bow to California on New Year's day the Tide automatically will drop back into a tie with Pitt for second place in the five-year standings while Minnesota moves into the pace-setting role.

East Places 4 Teams on "First 10.

As befits its sensational successes of the past season, the east place four teams in the "first ten" for 1933-37. Holy Cross, in fifth position, Princeton in 8th and Fordham in 10th are the others. The south has three—Alabama, Louisiana, which is No. 4 and Duke, No. 7. The middle west pre-empts the remaining places with Minnes in No. 2, Western Reserve in No. 6, and Michigan State, No. 9.

The southwest's first representative in the list is Texas Christian at No. 18. Colorado tops the Rocky mountain section in 19th place while the far west's leader, Santa Clara, is No. 20. Santa Clara, unbeaten and untied this year, would be close to the leaders except for the disastrous campaign of 1935 when the Bronchos were beaten six times.

The decline of football fortunes at Notre Dame is strikingly revealed by the Irish's position on the list—No. 33. Illinois, formerly a Big Ten threat, No. 57.

TRIBE, SOX DEAL FLOPS

Boston Offers Grove, McNair For Harder, Galehouse and Hughes.

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO—(AP)—Stymied at almost every bid on the dullest player mart in memory of the oldest ivory hunters, big league clubowners today haggled over an old, favorite subject—the baseball.

Over in the National league, everyone seemed agreed that a deader ball was necessary for the 1938 season but in the American, where long distance hitters grow like mushrooms and pop much louder, there was a big battle over the question. Led by the Yankees, the lively ball gang was fighting a hard fight and it looked as if it might win its point.

Different Balls.

Thus, there was every indication that the two leagues would use different calibres of horsehides next season . . . the Nationals a dead one and the Americans the same old lively spheroid.

So intense was the baseball dispute in the American league meeting yesterday that the clinic lasted almost five hours—a record sitting. Nothing official was learned but by grapevine information came reports that the Yankees argued so long and fervently for the old ball that they won the majority over.

Meanwhile, the only news from the huddle of club owners and managers came in the way of front office business, which was:

Closest approach to a major league swap fell through late last night as the Boston Red Sox walked out of a conference with Cleveland. The Red Sox offered Pitcher Lefty Grove and Infielder Eric McNair to the Indians for Pitchers Mel Harder and Dennis Galehouse and Infielder Roy Hughes, but Cleveland insisted on Infielder Pinky Higgins instead of Grove. That was the rub.

The National league re-elected Ford Christopher Frick as president for a three-year term at a good boost in salary, now estimated to be $27,500 annually. It voted down the New York Yankee proposal to hike the player limit from 23 to 25 and awarded the 1938 all-star game to Cincinnati.

In addition to their debate over the ball, the American league voted to open its 1938 season April 19 and close October 2—a day later on each end than in 1937—and voted down Sunday double-headers until the home team has played three Sabbath games. The Americans also voted to continue the major-minor league agreement from Feb. 1, 1938, to Jan. 1, 1942, and re-elected Col. Jacob Ruppert of the Yankees vice president. Named with the colonel on the league board of directors were Lou Comiskey, Chicago; Alva Bradley, Cleveland, and Tom Yawkey, Boston.

Voted Pensions.

Pensions also were voted to two retired A. L. umpires, Bill Dineen and George Hildebrand. Dineen retired yesterday; Hildebrand quit in 1934.

Gus Zarnas Named On Pathe All-America.

Gus Zarnas of Ohio State is selected to a guard position on the Pathe News All-America football team, which is released on the screen at the Ohio theater this week.

The team follows: Souchak, Pittsburgh, le., Shirey, Nebraska, lt.; Routt, Texas A. and M., lg.; Wojciechowicz, Fordham, c.; Zarnas, Ohio State, rg.; Franco, Fordham, rt.; Holland, Cornell, re.; Meek, California, qb.; Goldberg, hb.; Kilgrow, Alabama, hb.; Frank, Yale, fb.

The Pathe board is composed of Chick Meehan, chairman, of Manhattan college; Lou Little of Columbia; Wallace Wade of Duke; Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, and Tiny Thornhill of Stanford.

WHO WON FOOT-BOWL GAMES?

(By The AP Feature Service)

Who won the Soup Bowl football game a year ago New Year's Day? There are so many January 1 bowl games nowadays that it's hard to keep up with 'em. So we're taking it upon ourselves to refresh your memory as to what happened in the 1937 New Year's contests. Besides those we list, January 1, 1938, will see the annual East-West all star game at San Francisco and the Havana Recordi Bowl affair. Then there's a Sun Bowl in Texas, but we have yet to hear of a Dust Bowl battle.

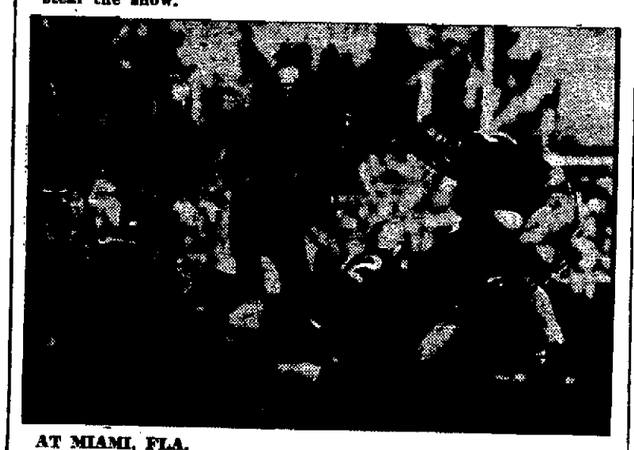

AT PASADENA, CALIF.
In the Rose Bowl, Pittsburgh's fullback, Frank Patrick—you can't see him—plunged across for a score in Pitt's 21-0 triumph over Washington. This may seem like just another touchdown to you, but it was important to Pitt. For the Panthers finally won a Bowl game after three losses. Pitt wouldn't go back, so Alabama will play California next January 1.

AT NEW ORLEANS, LA.
In the Sugar Bowl, Louisiana fans groaned at this most disheartening moment. Gomez caught a 20-yard pass from Falaschi and was off for Santa Clara's first-period touchdown in the Bronchos' triumph over Louisiana State, 21-14. L. S. U. will have an opportunity to even matters, for these teams have been selected to battle it out again. It looks like a toss-up.

AT DALLAS, TEXAS
In the Cotton Bowl, Sammy Baugh's passes brought Texas Christian a 16-6 triumph over Marquette. Here's one that failed as an alert Marquette defender batted down a toss to Roach just as the Texan grasped at it. No. 36 was Marquette's Buzz Buivid. Colorado's unbeaten team will face a southern eleven this time, replacing Marquette. All-America Halfback Byron White may steal the show.

AT MIAMI, FLA.
In the Orange Bowl, Boyd Brumbaugh of Duquesne gained five yards before bumping into Musselwhite of Mississippi State. The Dukes won, 13-12. The Pennsylvanians blackened their upper cheeks to protect their eyes from sun rays. Michigan State invades this time with Charles Bachman, former Florida grid mentor, ready to show off before the old "home folks."

City League Race Opens Next Week

Yuncker Sports Meet Westinghouse and Elks Tackle Canzols as Annual Title Chase Gets Under Way Tuesday at Senior High.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE LID will be pried off the 1937-38 City Class A basketball league Tuesday night when the circuit's four strong teams swing into action on the Mansfield Senior high hardwood.

Tuesday's opening games, scheduled to get under way at 7:30 o'clock, will see the strong Yuncker Sports facing the Westinghouse and the Elks battling Ira D. Ling's Canzols. The last two teams are new entries in the league this season.

Only four clubs will represent the league this season. This was decided by league officials and managers at a meeting last night. The change was made in an effort to bolster the roster of the teams already entered.

Yuncker Sports, one of the preseason favorites to cop the title, will present a veteran lineup. The club, which last season won the City league pennant flying the Dominion Electric colors, will remain practically intact for the season.

Veterans Back.

Heading the aggregation are Tom Farrell Al Stickler and Harold Hayfer. They were the mainstays of last winter's machine.

Manager Jimmy Breres has added Bob Bogantz, all-county guard from the powerful Ontario high club, Jack Miner, from Isaly Dairys and Munster, six-foot forward.

The team will start with Stickler and Miner at the forwards, Farrell at centter, and Hayfer and probably Bogantz at the guard posts.

Vern Jones' Westinghouse outfit, runner-up in last year's tight race, will have to be rebuilt. The backbone of that club will not play this year.

Jones loses Bob Bride, Harry Ross and Steve Voelker. The veterans left from which he will attempt to build a winning club are Howard Poole, Tommy Moxley, George Bosko, Friday and Bob Shade.

The Elks will toss a team into the race selected from the following: Adam Brandt, veteran city league player; Sturges; Wineland, a member of last year's Reece Opticals; Russ Hoff and Noel Morgan, erstwhile Mansfield high stars; Jim Wallace and Gene Brandon, two more City loop veterans; Hackendorn; Dent; John Hall and Jerry King. King will manage the club.

Patterson With Canzols.

Ira D. Ling's Canzols cage machine will include the following players; Howard Patterson, erstwhile Ontario high star; Dave Arbaugh, former Mansfield high player; George Hummel and John Schuster, City league veterans; L. Smith; Joe Atton; Willard Lockhart and Fred Buzard. Buzard will coach the outfit.

ARMSTRONG STOPS FOE

Kayoes Chavez In First; Lou Ambers Beats Wallace on Yule Card.

By REX V. HESS

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Dusky Henry Armstrong, world's champion featherweight, surveyed today an array of 25 knockout victories in his 26 encounters of the current year—but also considered the winning ways of Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers.

The title holders were featured in a double windup last night on the annual Cleveland News Christmas toy fund show, which attracted 12,000 fans.

Armstrong, 134¼, stopped Tony Chavez, 131, claimant of the Mexican featherweight title, in the initial stanza of a scheduled 10-round non-championship bout. Ambers, 138, flashed a lightning left and effective right uppercut to take a 10-round decision from Frankie Wallace, 138, of Cleveland.

The devastating little victors expect to clash in an outdoor show next summer with Ambers' crown at stake.

Chavez was down seven times—five of them for counts of from four to seven seconds—before the bout was stopped after two minutes and 14 seconds. He wilted under the Los Angeles Negro's terrific right hand punches to the head.

The champion from Herkimer, N. Y., had Wallace missing badly throughout the fight.

The Clevelander was bleeding from the mouth after the first round, and got a bad cut over the left eye in the ninth.

* * *

In the other bouts Carmen Barth, Cleveland, former Olympic middleweight champion, took an eight round decision from Eric Seelig of Germany; Ken Overlin, Portsmouth, Va., decision Jack Moran, Cleveland; Frankie Blair, New York, gained a nod over Eddie Morgan, Cleveland; and Ray Sharkey, Cleveland, scored a five-round knockout triumph at the expense of Charley Baxter of Pittsburgh.

SOUTH CAROLINA WINS

In answer to question: The University of South Carolina defeated Miami, 3 to 0, in a football game played last Friday.

RENEWAL OF IRISH-MICHIGAN GRID RELATIONS BRING BACK OLD TALES

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Editor.

THE news that Notre Dame and Michigan are planning to renew football relations brings back some ancient tales . . . of days when football was a bit more rough-and-tumble from a scholastic standpoint than at present . . . in 1908 Notre Dame finally beat Michigan after losing seven games to the Wolverines . . . that Notre Dame team was coached by "Shorty" Longman, former Michigan player, and the defeat didn't sit well at Ann Arbor.

Anyway, in 1909, Michigan questioned the eligibility of two Irish linemen, Dimick and Philbrook, who had played football for several years in the northwest, coming to Notre Dame from Walla Walla Junior college . . . though the contract for the 1919 game specified that these two men could play, the game was called off by Michigan.

Notre Dame was a bit galled for some years later — along about 1920 if my memory is working —by the case of Bernie Kirk . . . Kirk, a great end, played a year of football at Notre Dame . . . then strangely dropped out of school and matriculated at Michigan where he become an All-American . . . Yost was blamed for "inviting" Bernie to leave the Irish and become a Wolverine . . but I guess time heals everything . . . even eligibility disputes and "invitations" . . . but a lot of good reading matter is pretty sure to be printed before the kickoff of another Michigan-Notre Dame game.

Rose Bowl tickets are scaled at two prices . . . $3.30 will get you a pew behind the goal posts . . . and $4.40 a seat along the side of the field . . . the public gets what is left after California students, alumni and starium subscribers take their pick . . . each alumnus is limited to six seats . . . the Bowl holds 84,489 spectators.

* * *

One of the baseball writers at the Milwaukee meeting where Mickey Cochrane traded Gee Walker, Marvin Owen and Mike Tresh to the White Sox for Vernon Kennedy, Tony Piet and Dixie Walker made the crack that Bump Hadley helped that deal along . . . it was Bump, y'know who beaned the Mick last summer . . . Mrs. Ethel V. Mars and Col. Charles Howard are battling for the honor of the turf's leading money winner . . . the issue probably will be decided by Santa Anita's $5,000 Christmas Day stakes for which both are competing . . . earnings to date are $208,135 for Mrs. Mars and $207,134 for the San Francisco sportsman.

* * *

Welter Champion Barney Ross says he'll keep right on boxing after he's married . . . One of the amazing consequences of the football season was the number of sports writers who learned how to spell the name of Andy Wojciechowicz . . . California may have picked a logical Rose Bowl opponent in Alabama, but you'll never be able to convince New York football writers that Fordham isn't the team that should have been chosen . . . Yes, that's a lovely trip to the Rose Bowl in midwinter.

* * *

Announcement that Colorado will play in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day at Dallas has divided this office into two schools of thought . . . one group declares that Whizzer White, All-American speed merchant, will be slowed up by coming down from the mountains to the plains—the other faction believes the Whizzer will be speeded up by the change . . . think it over and mail your solution to Santa Claus.

BECKER, RODRIGUEZ WIN AT ARMORY

GEORGE BECKER, the popular New York German light-heavy, was declared the winner of the feature bout on the Quality club's light-heavyweight elimination tournament in the Armory last night.

Sterling Davis, the Oklahoma "Silver Streak," lambasted Becker and Referee Clarence Miller about the ring until both were practically "out" then slammed Becker to the mat and pinned him by forcing his shoulders to the canvas by using the ropes as a foothold. Referee Miller apparently did not see Davis' use of the hemps and awarded him the deciding fall. But the cash customers would have none of it and Promoter Tim Nolan, who had witnessed the illegal fall, told Davis he would have to continue or Referee Miller would be forced to reverse the decision.

Davis agreed to continue, but was so infuriated he lost all sense of the scientific side of the art, and pummeled Becker and Miller about the arena until Miller was forced to give Becker the decision on a disqualification.

Davis Wins First Fall.

Davis won the first fall of the affair in a very clever and interesting way by reversing a double leg lock into the painful Indian death lock which forced Becker to give up the fall. Becker turned the tables and won the second fall in 6 minutes after Davis had taken to crawling through the ropes to escape the grips Becker applied. In the flash of an eye the stanza was over when Becker gave a mighty heave of the top strand which somersaulted Davis to the center of the pad and Becker had him pinned before he could regain his bearings.

All in all, it was one of the cleverest and exciting exhibitions of the current elimination tourney. Becker displayed a brand of courage seldom equalled last night as he went into the ring with a temperature of 102, insisting that the "show must go on."

Jose Rodriguez of Mexico was the winner of the semi-final elimination when he pinned Clyde Clifford of Texas in the first and last falls of the match. Jose took the opening stanza in 26 minutes by reversing a leg lock into a body smother. Clifford won the second setto in less than two minutes with an airplane spin, flying mare, and body slam. But Jose used his feet, knees, teeth, fists, etc., to subdue Clifford in the final stanza, which required about 6 minutes.

This match was packed with action and entertainment, as Clifford is a grunter of exceptional ability, and Rodriguez is a showman of the first order.

Wolfe Wins.

Joe Wolfe, Columbus, although bloody and worn, took the decision from Fred Donley, Indianapolis, in the curtain raiser. The affair required 17 minutes but was a worthy beginning to one of the most entertaining shows of the season.

Rose Is Lone Veteran Back

Heads Squad of Simpson Cage Candidates.

Although only one veteran is back, the basketball prospects at John Simpson junior high school are not discouraging.

Coach Bob De Haven realizes he faces a task in rebuilding the court club, but a number of promising candidates have reported to bolster hopes.

The returning veteran is Don Rose, who is again slated to hold down the center berth. His understudy is Bud Lipson.

Promising forwards are Dick Burkholder, Earl Garnes, Gene Emmer and Bill Abele. Gaston Buzzard, Martin Henke and Bob Lantz stack up as the leading guard candidates.

In their opening game of the season, the Bulldogs defeated the Union Reserves, 26 to 12. They will continue their season Wednesday against an unnamed foe.

Predicts Death of Buckeye Loop.

CLEVELAND—(AP)— George Gauthier, athletic director of Ohio Wesleyan and secretary of the Buckeye conference, today predicted the compact little collegiate Athletic league would not survive the crisis which it faces when the annual winter meeting is held this week-end at Columbus.

"With the question of subsidization of athletes involved it will be a marvel if the Buckeye remains intact," Gauthier said in an address before an alumni group here.

Big 10 Teams Busy Tonight

CHICAGO—(AP)—It was one up and one to go tonight for the Big Ten's basketball co-champions.

Minnesota scored an opening game victory over Grinnell 41 to 32 last night. Illinois, which shared the title with the Gophers, will face its first foe of the season tonight in Carroll, for three consecutive years Wisconsin state college champion. The Illini make their debut with only Captain Louis Boudreau back from last year's regular five.

Northwestern and Ohio State also pla ytonight. The Wildcats invade Marquette, which thumped Wisconsin last week, while the Buckeyes oppose Marietta.

Last night Indiana and Wisconsin joined the Gophers in victory. The Hoosiers, in their first start, amassed 32 points in a last half surge to defeat DePauw 45 to 25. Wisconsin rebounded from the Marquette setback to trounce North Dekota 41 to 22.

ORDERED TO MEET

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The Midwest Wrestling association called on John Pesek of Nebraska and Everett Marshall of Columbus today to complete arrangements for a heavyweight championship bout. The Midwest group recognized Marshall a year ago and later the National Wrestling association named Pesek as title holder.

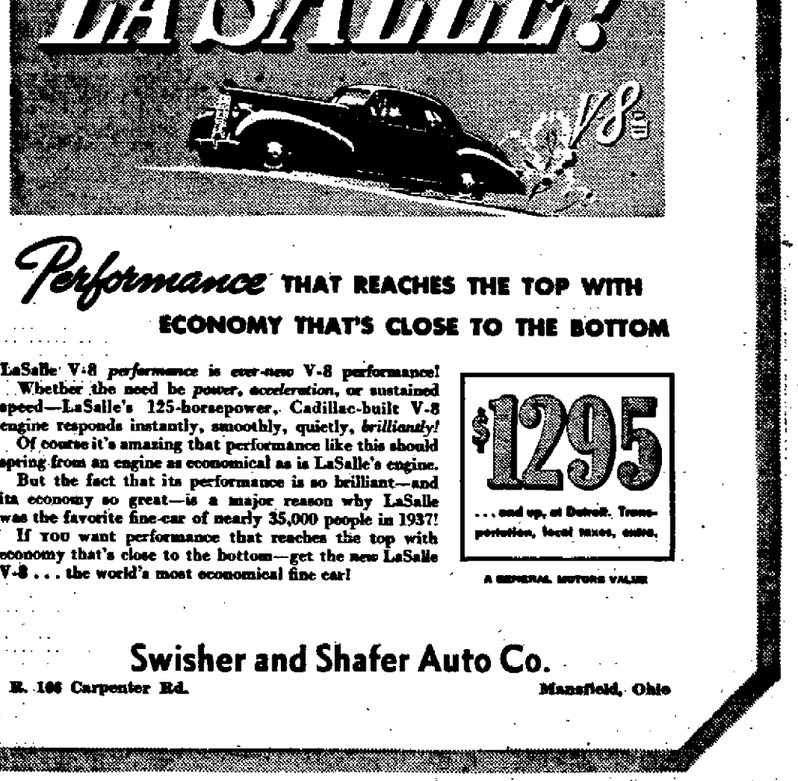

Future Tyger Foes Hang Up Victories

Two of the three foes on the Mansfield high school cage schedule which played last night came through with victories.

Columbus South, which comes here Friday night, trimmed Columbus Grandview, 29 to 25, and Cleveland Glenville whipped Cleveland Central, 28 to 26. Parma, another Tyger foe, bowed to Cleveland Rhodes, 27 to 21.

LOUISVILLE—Ammy Angott, 133, Louisville, outpointed Lew Massey, 135½, Philadelphia, (10).

BUFFALO—Johnny Freeman, 142, Salamanca, outpointed Big Boy Brackey, 217, Buffalo, (10).

Performance THAT REACHES THE TOP WITH ECONOMY THAT'S CLOSE TO THE BOTTOM

LaSalle V-8 performance is ever-new V-8 performance! Whether the need be power, acceleration, or sustained speed—LaSalle's 125-horsepower, Cadillac-built V-8 engine responds instantly, smoothly, quietly, brilliantly!

Of course it's amazing that performance like this should spring from an engine as economical as is LaSalle's engine.

But the fact that its performance is so brilliant—and its economy so great—is a major reason why LaSalle was the favorite fine car of nearly 35,000 people in 1937!

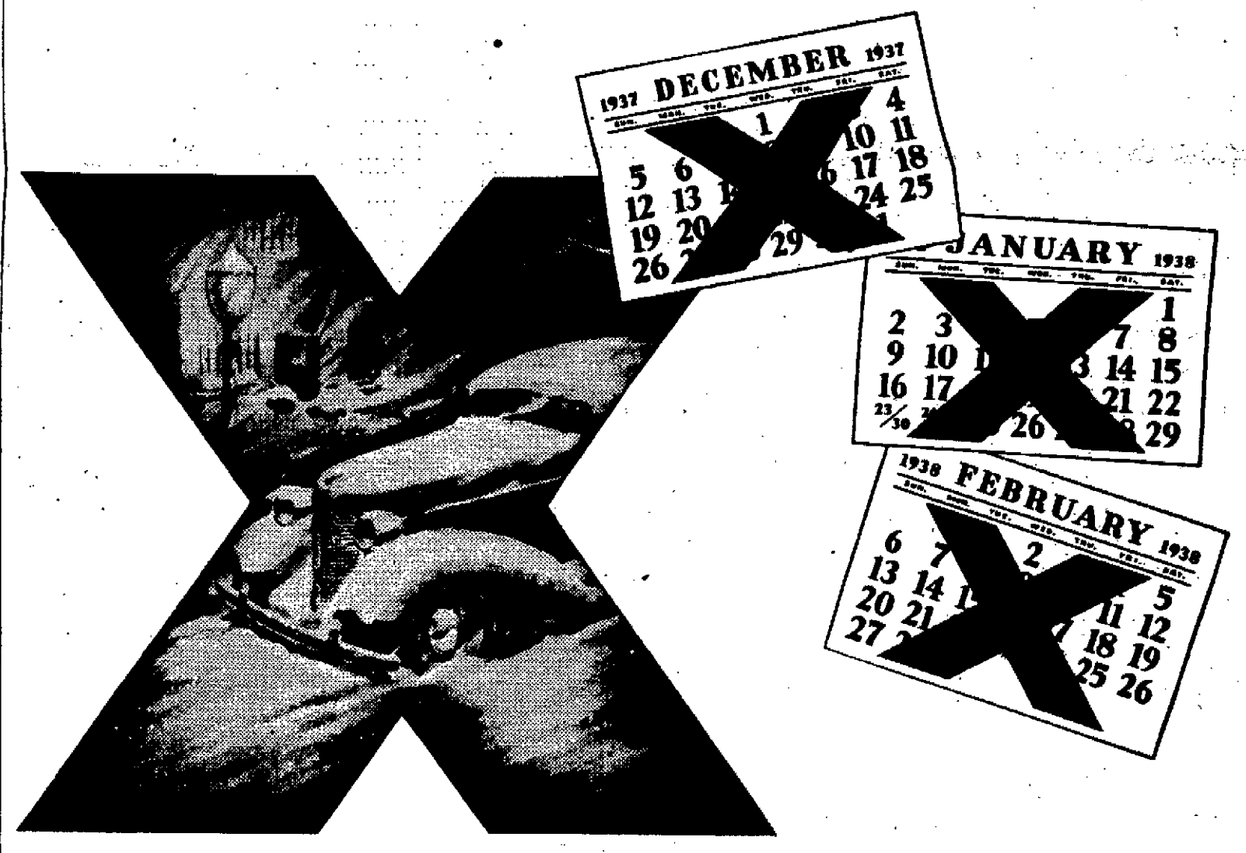

If you want performance that reaches the top with economy that's close to the bottom—get the new LaSalle V-8 . . . the world's most economical fine car!

G-MAN WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Shot as He Duels With Suspected Extortionist.

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — Henry A. Snow, federal bureau of investigation agent, was in critical condiiton today from shotgun wounds received in a duel with a suspected extortionist.

Snow and other agents were concealed near a railroad embankment last night near the spot where H. B. Jacobs, 37, coal dealer at suburban Independence, said he had been ordered in a letter to "pay off $600."

Snow saw a man approach, and the shooting ensued.

The suspect escaped.

BLAST TOLL 5

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—(AP)—An explosion and fire that partially demolished a children's clothing shop left a toll of five dead today as officials sought the cause.

MAJOR ISSUES CONTINUE TO DRIFT LOWER

Recovery Symptoms Scarce, Declines of Point or More In Majority.

NEW YORK— (AP) — Recovery symptoms were scarce in today's stock market and leading issues continued the lower drift which got under way in the preceding session.

While the proceedings were comparatively slow, declines running to a point or so were in the majority during the second hour.

Johns-Manville dipped, ignoring declaration of a special dividend. Celanese weakened following deferment of dividends on the common.

Bonds and commodities displayed diverse trends.

Financial quarters derived comfort from the announcement that the latest $450,000,000 treasury offering of bonds and notes had been heavily oversubscribed, the former 15 times and the latter 11.

On the other hand fears were expressed by trade circles that producers are accumulating inventories of finished goods despite drastic curtailment in output effected since Labor day. Gross stocks of lumber and some cotton gray cloths were said to have increased in the past few weeks notwithstanding lower mill activities.

ASKS PROBE OF PENSION HIKE

Lawmaker Questions Purpose In Davey's Increase Order.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Rep. L. C. Washburn (D-Summit) telegraphed the federal social security board today requesting an investigation of Gov. Martin L. Davey's action in increasing old age pension grants 10 per cent a month.

Declaring that there were 8,000 approved applictions for pensions on file and 8,000 other applications awaiting action, Washburn said in his elegram:

"It would appear that the governor is playing for the support from the 104,000 pensioners now on the rolls while disregarding the just claims of 16,000 applicants."

ROOSEVELT'S JAW STILL SORE

But X-rays Show Scraping of Bone Won't Be Necessary.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — White House officials said today examination of X-ray photograph disclosed "no bone involvement" in President Roosevelt's unhealed took socket.

Secretary Early told reporters this meant it would be unnecessary to scrape the jawbone to help the healing.

He added the infection was confined solely to the soft tissue of the gum and that another treatment, involving cleansing of the socket from which a tooth recently was extracted was given this morning.

Whether the president would go to his office and receive callers depended. Early said, on the outcome of these treatments.

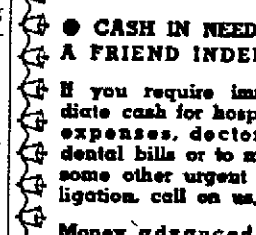

WALLACE MAPS BUSINESS AID

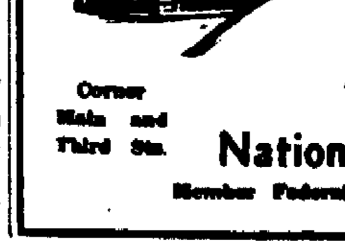

Farm, Labor Business Co-operation Held As Vital Factor.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Wallace introduced into business discussions today the prediction that industrial production can be increased "at least 40 per cent" within three years if farmers, workers, business men and the government co-operate.

He proposed in a radio speech last night seven "common sense" ways to restoring trade:

Home constructior. equitable tax law revision. farm legislation that is fair to producers and consumers alike, enactment of a "well-drawn" wage-hour bill, maintenance of a "healthy" securities market, continued government spending until private capital takes up the slack, and continuance of reciprocal trade treaties.

ALASKAN FILM OF WILD LIFE MADE BY U. S.

Cameraman Travels 12,000 Miles For 'Shots' of Fish, Birds and Animals.

SEATTLE —(U.P.)— Frizzy-thatched Joseph Yolo "Martin Johnson of the North," returned from Alaska's forested ranges with more than a mile of travel for every one of the 12,000-odd feet of 35-millimeter film he shot of wild animals, birds and fish.

Yolo was going home to Yakima, Wash. His "shots" were taken for the Alaska Game Commission and the Forest Service. After the film was edited and descriptive matter complete, it was divided for "shorts" and educational features.

Last May, after he had photographed Rainer National Park and Mount Olympus for the Forest Service, he was given 10 days' notice that he was to go to Alaska for the Federal government.

Trip Cost $10,000.

He went, and in the ensuing six months endured innumerable hardships. Bad weather limited his "shooting" time. He scaled high peaks for unusual shots and made four trips across the Gulf of Alaska. The trip cost $10,000, or almost a dollar a foot of film.

Yolo photographed grizzly bears fishing on Admiralty and Chichagoff Islands. He traveled the old Richardson highway, the Valdez trail and the Steese highway — once the Circle-Fairbanks trail, worn by padded feet of dog teams in gold rush days.

North of Circle, on the Yukon river, Yolo found Indian tribes awaiting the migrating herds of caribou.

Saw 25,000 Caribou.

"The caribou are mysterious animals," Yolo said. "They appear and vanish—just as though you were rubbing an Aladdin's lamp. You can see them coming over a far-away mountain in a long, straight line. For seven days, thousands and thousands of them filed by our location. One herd of at least 25,000 took an hour to pass a certain point."

Yolo said the Indian tribes gather where they know the caribou will cross a river. He pointed out that it is against the law to shoot the animals while they are swimming. The Indians go out in boats, shoot the animals on either shore and carry home their winter meat in the boats.

On the Kenai peninsula he found moose hunters from all over the world: Kermit Roosevelt, a French duke, a Polish count, A. C. Gilbert, toy manufacturer, and many millionaires.

Yolo obtained rare shots of eagles, ptarmigan, salmon and virtually every type of wild game in the Alaskan wilderness.

Four out of every five people in the world who purchase automobiles buy American-made cars.

TEMPTS HUNTERS

Buck Deer Found Wandering in Business District.

SAYRE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Temptation ran high among the hunters in this borough when a 7-point buck deer wandered into the business section. The deer hunting season had not opened, however. The animal crossed the entire town, swam the Susquehanna River and then disappeared into the woods.

Although England insists on some official recognition or ceremony to validate a marriage, Scottish law has preserved the rule that mere interchange of consent is sufficient.

COLOR CHANGES MARK YULE CARD FOR THIS YEAR

Blue Challenges Traditional Red and Green In Newest Greeting Messages.

(News-Journal Special)

NEW YORK—The 1937 Christmas cards are gayly doing their part to make this a joyous Yuletide. They extend their seasonal messages in all sorts of new and diverting ways with up-to-date renderings of the beloved seasonal motifs and particularly, a new use of color, with blue definitely predominating.

Blue tones this year flaunt a colorful challenge to the traditional supremacy of red and green, and appear in a wide variety of deep, brightly vivid tones that are sharply in contrast with the grayed blues and soft pastels popular in past seasons. Solid blue cards are widely favored with designs in white and silver. Poinsettias and holly sprays surprisingly appear with blue leaves in smart contrast to the red. Christmas candles are done in cut-outs of blue metallic.

Brown Popular.

Deep brown and beige and yellow tones are also in vogue in case you want to vary your Christmas missives. A booklet of brown, for example, widely paneled at the left with gold, is adorned with a formalized candle in red and gold, and bears its "Merry Christmas" lettered in brown on the gold, and gold on the brown background of the card.

Another new color combination combines grays with black and white accenting them, on occasion, with touches of red. One such card, in modern interpretation of the wonted Christmas coach motif, uses red for the coats of the riders, the rest of the design being carried out in grays and black on white, with the single line "Jolly Christmas" in red below.

Nor is the originality of the new cards limited to their versatility in the matter of color. There's the clever new use of lettering, as well, so that in many cases the message of greeting actually becomes the design of the card. For instance, a solid-color red card bears on its face simply the words "Season's Greetings," the first word cut out in block letters of silver and the second, in picturesque black and silver, script, block and script lettering combinations being a favorite style device.

Varied Use of Lines.

Or for another instance, there is a card of pale yellow smartly lined with striping of gold, which carries a two-line "Christmas Greetings" in brown circled about with lines of brown and gold. And that brings up another way in which the cards this season distinguish themselves—namely the varied use of lines. There are lined panels and lined borders, fine lines that make a frame and backgrounds variously lined, even papers woven with indented lines.

Striking also among the Yuletime greetings are the number of cards which reflect contemporary interests. The fondness for winter sports, for example, is responsible for any number of ski motifs, ice-skaters and tobogganists. The mid-winter vacation vogue brings forth an assortment of cards appropriate to tropical climes, as a beach scene of carefree figures lounging under their sun-umbrellas against a background of cerulean blue waters and silvery palms. The familiar "Three Ships" become smart red, white and blue sailboats on a striped sea of silver or churning tugs in a city harbor. The old-fashioned roof-top vistas become metropolitan skyscrapers. Youthful figures in modish modern garb exchange casual "Cheerio's" and "Hi, there's!" Meeting a current artistic preference, there are authentic marines and sea-scapes, many by well-known artists.

NURSING EXPANDED

EL PASO, Tex.—(U.P.)—In 1921, a visiting nurse was employed by the El Paso Methodist Episcopal church. A one-room adobe building was used as a makeshift maternity hospital. Today a $30,000 hospital of Spanish architecture stands on the site of the adobe hut.

Blue Predominates In Christmas Cards For 1937

—Central Press Photo.

Christmas cards for this year are different than in past years, but one of the most noticeable changes is that in the color. Red and green have been the traditional colors of Christmas, but many of this year's most attractive cards are built around a blue color motif—sometimes blue and silver, but as often only blue.

PLANS FOR ANNUAL CHRISTMAS LIGHTING CONTEST ANNOUNCED

Mansfielders will be given an opportunity again this year to win prizes for their outdoor electrical Christmas decorations in a lighting contest being sponsored by the Ohio Public Service company, and the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A.

Any resident living within the Mansfield city limits will be eligible to enter the contest. Judging will be based on originality and beauty of decorations.

Homes outside the city limits will not be judged in the contest, Y. W. C. A. officials said, as only one week will be given to look over all the decorated homes.

Judging of decorations will begin Christmas night and will continue until New Year's eve. Judges will be selected by the Girl Reserve committee of which Mrs. Charles Siegenthaler is general chairman. Their names will not be made public.

Prizes for the best decorated homes as in past years, will be given by the Ohio Public Service company. The awards will be presented on New Year's eve.

The rules provide that only electric decorations will be eligble for the contest.

PLAN EARHART GROVE ON ISLE

Trees, Shrubs to Commemorate Ill-Fated Fliers.

HONOLULU— (U.P.) —Hundreds of trees and shrubs supplied by the U. S. department of agriculture are being planted on barren Howland Island in mid-pacific, Richard Black, official in the department of the interior, has announced.

The trees and shrubs will be the nucleus of a grove to be known as the "Earhart Grove," in honor of Amelia Earhart and Fred Noonan, round-the-world fliers who were lost in the Pacific somewhere between New Guinea and Howland, he said.

Black declared search for traces of the plane flown by Miss Earhart had not been abandoned by the federal government.

JUROR SLEEPS

Attorney Asks New Trial Because Only 11 Heard Evidence.

PUEBLO, Colo. — (INS) — An appeal filed by attorneys for William Perry after his conviction in district court here on confidence game charges was based on the contention that only 11 jurors heard the evidence. The twelfth juror, Rev. H. A. Rogers, colored minister, the appeal declared, slept through the entire proceedings.

STUDENTS HAVE THEIR OWN BANK

Take Books and Notes as Security On Loans

DETROIT —(AP)— Students at the Detroit Institute of Technology are learning banking by operating their own bank, which is chartered by the Michigan banking department.

Known as the Educational Credit Union of Detroit, it is believed to be the only student bank in the United States under state supervision.

The credit union pays 4 per cent interest on deposits and charges students 6 per cent on loans made for educational purposes. Books as well as promissory notes are accepted as security.

VIOLATE SPEED LAW

DALLAS—(U.P.)—Dallas police are wondering just how far to go in law enforcement. An ordinance provides for a fine ranging from $10 to $200 for trains running faster than 12 miles an hour within the city. Police scratch their heads while streamlined trains speed to and from the union terminal.

SEAMAN FOUND DEAD

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— Nels A. Lavell, 67, of Tonawanda, N. Y., third mate on the Great Lakes freighter J. J. H. Brown, was found fatally injured yesterday in the hold of the ship. Shipmates said they believed Lavell fell through one of the deck openings.

WEIGHS PLEA

Judge Hears Story of Mother Who Gave Her Baby Away.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A plea of a young mother for the return of her four-year-old daughter she said was given to foster parents under false pretense is being weighed by Probate Judge William H. Lauders.

Mrs. Elizabeth Matthis, 24, was supported in her fight by her husband, James, who said he was the father of the child born before their marriage.

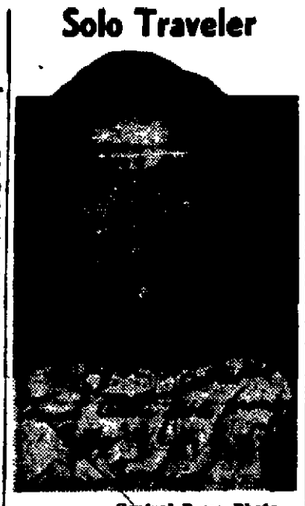

"She gave me the baby after I had her for months," declared Mrs. Minnie E. Clements, the foster mother, "and never said anything about wanting her back."

SOW ATTACKS

Gold Miner Injured By Enraged Porker.

QUESNEL, B. C.—(INS)—Kong Fu, 90, for nearly 60 years a gold miner near here, was seriously injured when attacked by a sow, as he attempted to drive a herd of pigs into a pen. The animal knocked over the aged Chinese, biting him severely on the arm, thigh and neck. Despite his age, he was expected to recover.

Solo Traveler

With name and destination stitched on her coat and sweater, Elinor Richard, eight-year-old orphan, is shown waiting at the quarters of the Travelers Aid Society of New York before resuming her journey from Christiansand, Norway, to San Francisco. Elinor knows no English. She will live with an uncle.

DIVING LOON HOOKED

DELMAR, Del. (AP) — Mrs. Sewell H. Wayland caught more than she bargained for when she went fishing off Bayview pier at Lewes. When she drew her line from the water, she found she had caught a 7-pound diving loon instead of a fish.

CALIFORNIA DAM TO BE SECOND IN WORLD SIZE

Shasta Project Planned To Create Reservoir of 4½ Million Acres.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (U.P.) — The federal government has revised its plans for Shasta dam of the Central Valley water project and the structure will be the second largest concrete dam in the world.

It will be more immense than Boulder dam, stemming the flood waters of the Colorado river, and will be second in size only to the Grande Coulee dam on the Columbia river in Washington.

Although Boulder dam will remain unchallenged as the world's highest structure of it type, Shasta dam will be more than twice as long across its crest. It will be 3,100, compared to Boulder's 1,282 feet. Grand Coulee, spreading 4,200 feet across the Columbia, is the world's widest.

The Northwest's dam also will contain more concrete than any other. The Grand Coulee dam and power houes will require 11,250,000 cubic yards of concrete. Shasta will take 5,700,000 cubic yards. Boulder required 4,360,000 cubic yards.

560-Foot Wall.

Revised plans for Shasta call for a wall approximately 560 feet high. Behind of the dam a storage reservoir of 4,500,000 acre feet will range 35 miles or more into the upper Sacramento river canyon 13 miles from Redding. Previously, the dam's storage capacity was set tentatively at 3,000,000 acre feet of water from the Pit, McCloud and Sacramento rivers.

Although it will not be as high as Boulder's 727 feet, it will surpass Grand Coulee's crest elevation of 553 feet.

Revied details of the dam's design were revealed by Walker R. Young, bureau of reclamation construction engineer for Boulder dam and for the central valley project.

The Chambon dam in France, 450 feet high, is the nearest approach in size to these three western giants, he said. Hetch Hetchy in Yosemite National park, San Francisco's principal source of water supply, recently raised to 427 feet is next, with the bureau's Owyhee dam in eastern Oregon, 417 feet, following in order.

Concrete to be used in Shasta dam, he said, would build a solid monument a city block square and as high as the Empire State building in New York City. A freight train more than 200 miles long would be required to haul all the cement and there will be sufficient water in the Shasta reservoir to cover the entire city of Chicago to a depth of 35 feet.

Owner of Flat Seeking Renters With Children

BERKELEY, Cal. —(U.P.)— Otis R. Marston, apartment house owner here, reversed the usual order of things when he advertised for tenants with children.

A sign hanging before a brand new apartment house building here said: "For Rent. Children Preferred."

Marston, a property owner for more than 20 years, revealed that he had finally convinced himself that it is more profitable to rent an apartment, flat or home to a family with children.

"It's taken me a long time to realize that children aren't half so destructive as adults, but now I know it's true."

He explained: "In my experience, all the children have ever done was scuff a little paint or plaster off a wall. Adults have cost me a small fortune in one item alone, and that's replacing sink boards they ruined by jabs with ice-picks."

Marston added that he might reserve the new building for families with children.

NURSE CAN HELP

She Can Hold Patient's Hand, Speed Recovery, Doctor Says.

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Nurses were urged today to hold hands with their patients.

Dr. Ansel M. Caine, of Tulane university medical school, advocated it, not as a boon to budding romances, but as a help in soothing the nerves of patients on the operating table.

He said that "a gentle pat" on the cheek and "a light squeeze of the hand" by the nurse "is very helpful."

To separate a head of lettuce when the leaves are tightly grown together, hold under running water. The force of the water separated leaves without breaking.

Your Intestines WANT to Be Regular

If your intestines could talk, they'd tell you that common constipation comes from NEGLECT. Modern meals too often omit Nature's "regulators"—the laxative parts of wheat.

You can avoid common constipation by eating Kellogg's All-Bran.

All-Bran does TWO things. First, it gives you "bulk." It absorbs water and softens like a sponge—this water-softened mass aids elimination. And second, Vitamin "B,"—the vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract and promotes a healthy movement.

Kellogg's All-Bran is a crunchy, toasted cereal. Eat it with milk or cream and fruits—or in cooking. But however you eat it, use it REGULARLY. Eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation—and cathartics, too! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

LEGION SAFETY SIGNS PLACED AT CROSSINGS

Post Pushes Drive to Protect Children; 88 Installed at Schools, City Entrances.

As part of a national safety program conducted by the American Legion, signs to protect the school children at the 80 school crossings in Mansfield and at the entrances of the city were being installed today.

Co-operated with McVey post of Legion are the vocational classes of the Senior high school, the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, the Mansfield Structual Steel company and the city of Mansfield.

Nearly 100 of the school crossing signs were made by the vocational classes under the direction of V. H. Oberlander, their instructor. They are placed on solid steel posts donated by the Mansfield Structual Steel company. The steel for the signs was given by the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

"Protects Children."

Stenciled on the octagonal orange plaques is the inscription, "Mansfield Protects its Children."

E. Ray Jenkins, chairman of the McVey post safety committee said that the city street department was installing the signs, but that the Legion would maintain them.

Jenkins explained that the installation of the warnings to motorists was part of a national program conducted by the American Legion.

Besides the school crossing signs, the McVey Post has purchased eight large white enameled "Welcome" signs that are to be placed at the corporation limits on all routes entering the city.

Bearing the American Legion emblem on a white background, it reads: "Welcome, Mansfield, Ohio—Drive Carefully."

Believe In Signs—Here's Some You Should!

(News-Journal Photos)

If you don't believe in signs, you should, these two young ladies insist. They are holding two of the 88 warnings which the American Legion has had installed at the city's 80 school crossings and the eight highways leading into Mansfield. Mary Bushnell, 11 (left) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bushnell, 168 Vennum avenue, has one of the 80 signs placed near schools. Eight of the warnings shown at the right by Miss Elizabeth Snyder, were installed at the city's entrances.

ADMINISTRATION'S THROTTLING BUSINESS, CITY FOREMEN TOLD

The present administration in Washington is to blame for much of the fear that has handicapped the nation's business and industry in the last few years, C. S. Coler, director of industrial relations for Westinghouse at East Pittsburgh, Pa., told the Mansfield Foremen's club last night.

Coler was the principal speaker on a program arranged for "Westinghouse night" at the club's dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

"Government and industry don't understand each other," he declared. "There have been laws and intervention that have throttled business at a time when it was recovering from the blow dealt by a depression. Most of us are still bewildered. I believe industry can solve its own problems without government control."

He listed the government's attitude toward wage and hour regulation, the social security plan and increasing taxes that take the surplus out of industry as damaging to the country's economic interests.

"The social security program," he said, "may turn out not to be there when you need it, unless measures are taken to bring the plan under better control."

The level of education of employes has advanced from the sixth grade to high school in recent years in the large industrial plants, making for more individual thought and stronger forces for the foreman and manager to deal with, Coler declared

"Naturally it requires more tact and understanding to keep harmony in an organization than in former years. And harmony in the group of workers is important in avoiding trouble. The satisfied worker never turns against the best interests of his company," Coler said.

Pointing to social, governmental and economic factors which have added new problems for the modern industrial and business executive, Coler said. "We must learn to make out relationships more human—understand the people we work with and get along with them. Mutuality in relations with men is an expression of democracy in industry and we must keep democracy alive if business and government are to survive.

"The executive should be easier to meet; he should invite visitors instead of trying to keep them away," Coler said. "Let's open up our plant doors to the public and show people how other men make their living."

Speaking briefly, C. L. VanDerau, manager of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, and first president of the Foremen's club, commended the club for the progress it has made since it was organized 11 years ago.

"The organization has maintained its objective in providing educational advantages and opportunity for the exchange of ideas," he said. "One of the things responsible for that is the plan that makes it impossible for a president of the club to succeed himself. There is always new blood in the organization to keep it alive and moving," he added.

Harold W. Arlin, supervisor of industrial relations at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, was toastmaster during the dinner and introduced the speakers. Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, gave the invocation.

The Westinghouse dance band, directed by R. O. Richards, played for the dinner period.

More than 200 men from Mansfield and Shelby attended the session which was in charge of C. F. Beddard of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, vice president of the Foremen's group.

SURVEY CHARTS 'LOST PEOPLES'

Rockefeller Foundation Aids Researchers In Move to Solve Refugee Problem.

LONDON—(AP)—A serious attempt is being made to throw light on the problem of the "lost tribes" of the 20th century.

With the assistance of the Rockefeller Foundation, and supplemented by grants from the Leverhulme Trust and the Halley Stewart Trust, the Royal Institute of International Affairs has undertaken a scientific survey of the world's refugee problem.

Investigators appointed by the Refugee Survey are at work in France, in Holland and Belgium, in the countries of the Near East, including Turkey, Syria and Cyprus, and in China.

Sir John Hope Simpson, director of the survey, said that efforts will be made to publish the results of the inquiry early next July. It is hoped that this will be in time for the problem to be considered in the light of the report of the survey before the dissolution of the Nansen Office and of the High Commission for German refugees, the two legal organizations for the protection of refugees. Under a resolution of the assembly, these organizations are due to be liquidated in December, 1938.

"Should the League decide finally to wash its hands of the refugees, which is to me an unthinkable possibility," Sir John said, "they will be thrown back entirely on the voluntary bodies."

FIRES REDUCED TO RECORD LOW

Tourist More Careful in Preventing Forest Blazes.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Tourists this year set an all-time record for care in preventing forest fires, the U. S. Forest Service reports.

A check of the 161 national forests showed loss from man-caused fires this year was reduced more than 70 per cent from the annual average for the past five years.

Up to Oct. 1, 5,141 forest fires were caused by human agency. Last year the figure was 9,609 for the same period. The annual average for the nine-months period during the past five years has been 5,294 fires.

The greatest reduction in the number of man-caused fires during the period was reported in the 34 eastern states, where only 3,045 such fires occurred, compared with 7,368 in 1936.

BROWN TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

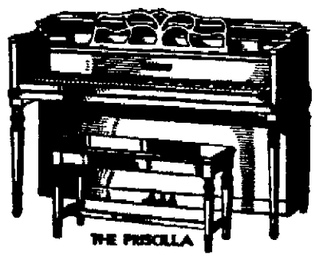

Ends Speculation Over Candidacy For Ohio Governor.

WILMINGTON—(AP)—Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester publisher, had his hat in the ring today as candidate for the Republican nomination as Congressman from the seventh district.

The formal announcement by the former secretary of state and lieutenant governor ended speculation in political circles over his possible candidacy for the governorship. He was defeated in a contest for that office in 1934.

It was reported that Brown would be opposed in the primary by former Congressman L. T. Marshall of Xenia.

How to Make Better Cough Remedy Than You Can Buy
A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!
Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.
Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It is far better than anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.
This is positively the most effective, quick-acting cough remedy that money could buy. Instantly, you feel it penetrating the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen its equal for prompt and pleasing results.
Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Why take needless chances with Coughing Colds
Relieve their misery this PROVED way
YOU don't have to experiment. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.
Here's What To Do: It's best to keep the patient in bed and see that she gets lots of rest. Be sure she eats lightly, drinks plenty of water, and keeps elimination regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.
VapoRub has been proved by use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.
NO LONG WAITING FOR RELIEF TO BEGIN
VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upsets. You simply massage it on throat, chest, and back.
Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.
Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.
This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working.

NOTE: If the cough is very annoying, or the air-passages feel clogged with heavy mucus or phlegm, even stronger vapor action is helpful. Pour boiling water in a bowl, melt a teaspoonful of Vapoltub in it, and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXXII

"All right." Her hand reached out for the bourbon bottle and poured a glass. Roger's hand steadied. Three times the firm signature was repeated.

"And that—is that." The pen dropped from his hand. "One more bourbon, Judge." He struggled out of his chair. The glass was shaking as he held it high. He drained it and flung it behind him on the floor.

"To Elna!" he shouted, and pitched forward on the carpet.

They carried the sagging form of Ainsworth upstairs.

* * *

"Graham," James called, "get Western Union and tell them to have a boy here for first 'take' in ten minutes and keep boys coming every ten minutes until stopped. Night press collect, order James, A.A.A."

"Judge, you regret that the dismissal of the case does not leave you with the option of a directed verdict, in view of sudden new evidence, etc., etc. Slam on that Elna is not only free by law but completely exonerated. Then tell how you suspected all along in court that she was innocent. The errorless judge once again proved not in error. Gee, that line will pay you for this night. Oh yes, put in a word for Roger. I can't think how, just now, but do it. Jump into it—make it a wow. Think what has happened to other girls who have tried to make their way back to the world after being granted half freedom. Hammer on Elna, give her everything. And, Judge, what about picture?"

Miss Hetty produced an amateur photograph she had taken, a clear character study of the old man, in the chair recently occupied by Roger. The eyes were half closed, examining legal papers. "The judge happened to remember that this represents the scene of tonight," she said.

"Find out when the next airmail goes and then come to me," James ordered Graham, then hurried to the Judge's typewriter in the study to hammer out the main story. When Graham returned James glanced at the clock, seized the telephone. He called his office.

"McKenzie? James. We have the whole Jepson story on the way. There'll be a signed story by wire from Judge Ashton. Photo leaving here airmail 1:30 showing judge with document, also original signed statement of Roger Ainsworth. Am writing main story, but it'll be a bit late—picture, Ainsworth confession, judge swearing he believed her innocent—all exclusive."

* * *

By this time James' black hair looked very ruffled. He was in the state of fatigue which made sleep seem forever impossible. He wrote rapidly, colorfully: "This night a man opened his sealed lips —" The typewriter rushed on with occasional stops for the telegraph boy to receive his own and the judge's copy.

His own story was done at last. The judge's last page was also in his hands. He opened the door. The telegraph boy thrust a message into his hands. James pushed out his copy, automatically said, "Wait a minute," and read his message: "Pretty good. Worth two-hundred-dollar bonus but can afford only one hundred. Get drunk and go to bed. McKenzie."

"The only remaining job," Graham said, "Is to get engaged to Elna and married by the judge—exclusively—as soon as possible. Come along judge. First, drop me at Elna's. Then you can go and rout out the county clerk and get the license, certificate or whatever it is."

"I think it can be arranged," said the judge with utmost dignity.

* * *

Elna had wakened with all her problems before her. Her eyes were fixed on the dying fire, but she was too stiff to move and rouse it to flame. Everywhere she loked for work she would be dyed with what had happened to her—the half verdict which left her guilt still halfway open, a figure of undesirable and unsolved mystery.

The little clock chimed. It was two o'clock. The number had a meaning. Oh, yes, Curtis Graham had told her long ago to call him if she needed him. Even at two o'clock in the morning.

She needed him now. He had never failed her friendship, never betrayed her. Tears were smarting in her eyes as she dialed his number and heard the long, repeated "gnurr" which indicated no answer. The doorbell rang. She replaced the receiver and hastened to the door.

"You came!' she received Curtis, as if he had appeared in response to her thoughts or the mechanism of the telephone.

"I had a hard time to get here by two o'clock, but I knew you'd need me tonight," Graham answered. "Remember, we've spent a lot of time while you were asleep. Nothing like the press." He flung an armful of dupes on her bed, a copy of Ainsworth's statement. "Read those things. You don't want to get married without knowing what it's all about."

"Married?" Elna asked uncertainly.

"Yes, married," Curtis answered. "I learned it from the newspaper business. They tell you a thing must be true, and you find out it is."

"But you can't want to marry me," Elna called from the bathroom. "Think of all that is still against me. Everything—"

"Is arranged. You'll like it. You'll like that story by James tomorrow. Whom would you like to have marry us?"

"Judge Ashton, of course."

'I just heard his car stop outside." Graham dashed downstairs.

"Greetings," she said to the returning three. "I hear that all of you have spent the evening restoring my future. That was very nice of you. Darling judge, you can marry us here and now, can't you? I mean Mr. Graham, who makes a point of taking care of me."

* * *

She saw three faces, white with fatigue, before her. "You poor lambs, you all need a drink." She drew her company bottle of brandy from beneath the table. "You shall have this after we have all signed the marriage lines, or whatever they're called." The judge produced the proper forms. The signatures were made.

"To those who are born to trouble as the sparks fly upward!" She poured glasses of her company brandy.

James took one drink. Fatigue overcame him instantly. She glanced at him, staggering to her bed, took the telephone, and called his office.

"McKenzie?" she said. "This is Elna Jepson — remember the voice when I verfied a story by James? I was married at 2:20 a. m. by Judge Ashton with L. M. James as witness. I chose both out of gratitude and friendship, you may look up Curtis Graham in your clips—there'll be plenty."

"I'll treat myself to a small glass of your brandy before I go," Judge Ashton said.

"I thought I could do everything by myself, but I couldn't."

"That is a pretty good lesson," the judge smiled. He kissed her hand with his courtly gesture, and was gone.

* * *

Elna rolled James off her bed to the livingroom rug, placed a pillow under his head and covered him with a blanket. She thrust Curtis's feet on top of the couch and covered him. She stood for a moment looking down on them. James loved her—she knew it, despite his concealments, as every woman knows when she is loved—but with him, his work would always come first. That did not matter; but in all that meant most to him, his zest for excitement, for triumph, she had no share.

Roger, whose presence had saturated this room, had loved her—but he would always think first of himself. Her admiration for him was entirely transmuted into pity.

"No more idolatry," she whispered softly. Curtis had not asked idolatry, nor given it. She had watched him grow from boyhood to the one man to whom she would trust her life — and who would trust his to her. It was as though they had forever looked at life mutually without knowing it.

She smiled, her chin tilted high in the old way.

THE END

THE NEXT STORY

This is the last chapter of "The State vs. Elna Jepson."

We hope you've liked it—and we hope you'll like the new serial story, "Remember That Night," by Margaret Gorman Nichols, the first chapter of which will appear in The News-Journal tomorrow. Watch for it.

'ELEANOR BLUE' REPLACED BY PURPLE FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who unwittingly set a style a few years ago with "Eleanor blue," now has a liking for purple.

Two new dinner gowns completed for her wardrobe are of shades of purple, a color she has seldom worn.

She also has a new cold lame formal gown, with a rhinestone studded top, a semi-train and a wrist length cape trimmed with Russian sable kolinsky.

The president's wife arrived here after a visit to homestead projects in West Virginia and Pennsylvania with a party that included Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell.

She said Mrs. Cromwell "simply had expressed a wish to go with me sometime on such a trip, and her husband thought it was a good idea."

Most of the people they visited, Mrs. Roosevelt added, didn't recognize Mrs. Cromwell.

The two new dinner gowns, which Mrs. Roosevelt will wear to White House teas, are on slim, simple lines, with brief cap sleeves and with a skirt slashed about a foot in front.

One is "petunia purple," satin-crepe, beltless, floor-length, with a "V" neck and sash-ends that hang from neck to hem.

The other, a purple crepe, is trimmed with brilliant fuchia crepe, and is ankle length.

The gold gown is for state dinners.

Baffling Mail Theft

An almost "perfect crime"—the theft without violence of $50,000 worth of registered mail from a double-locked truck in transit in New York—baffles Uncle Sam's postoffice sleuths. In all, 11 sacks of mail were removed from the armored truck, five of them being recovered from the East river by a man fishing for eels. A postal investigator is shown above with the mail recovered.

The British Labor party had only two seats in the house of commons in 1900. The peak of its power was reached in 1929 when there were 287 Labor members of parliament.

COLD WINTER?

Farmer Predicts Hard Season; Points To 'Sure Signs.'

WILSON, N. C.—(AP)—Leslie W. Mathews, as spokesman for a group of Wilson County's "old-time" farmers, predicts a long, hard winter. He points to these "sure signs:" Persimmon trees are unusually heavy with fruit; corn husks are thicker than usual; animals are getting their new fur early in the fall.

TREAT A COLD AS IF YOU MEAN IT!

Don't Fool Around with Half-way Measures!

One of the worst things you can do is "kid around" with a cold.

The so-called "common cold" causes more serious sickness and more enforced absence from work than anything else.

It's a mistake to treat a cold lightly. A cold calls for a cold treatment and not a "cure-all." A cold calls for internal treatment, for a cold is an internal infection.

Your Stand-by!

What you should take for a cold are Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets)!

First of all, Bromo Quinine tablets are a real cold medicine, made expressly for the treatment of colds.

Secondly, they are internal medication.

They do four things:

First, Bromo Quinine tablets open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets may be taken with confidence.

The fact that they have been on the market for over 40 years and that they are the largest-selling cold tablet in the world, assures you of their reliability.

Your Best Bet!

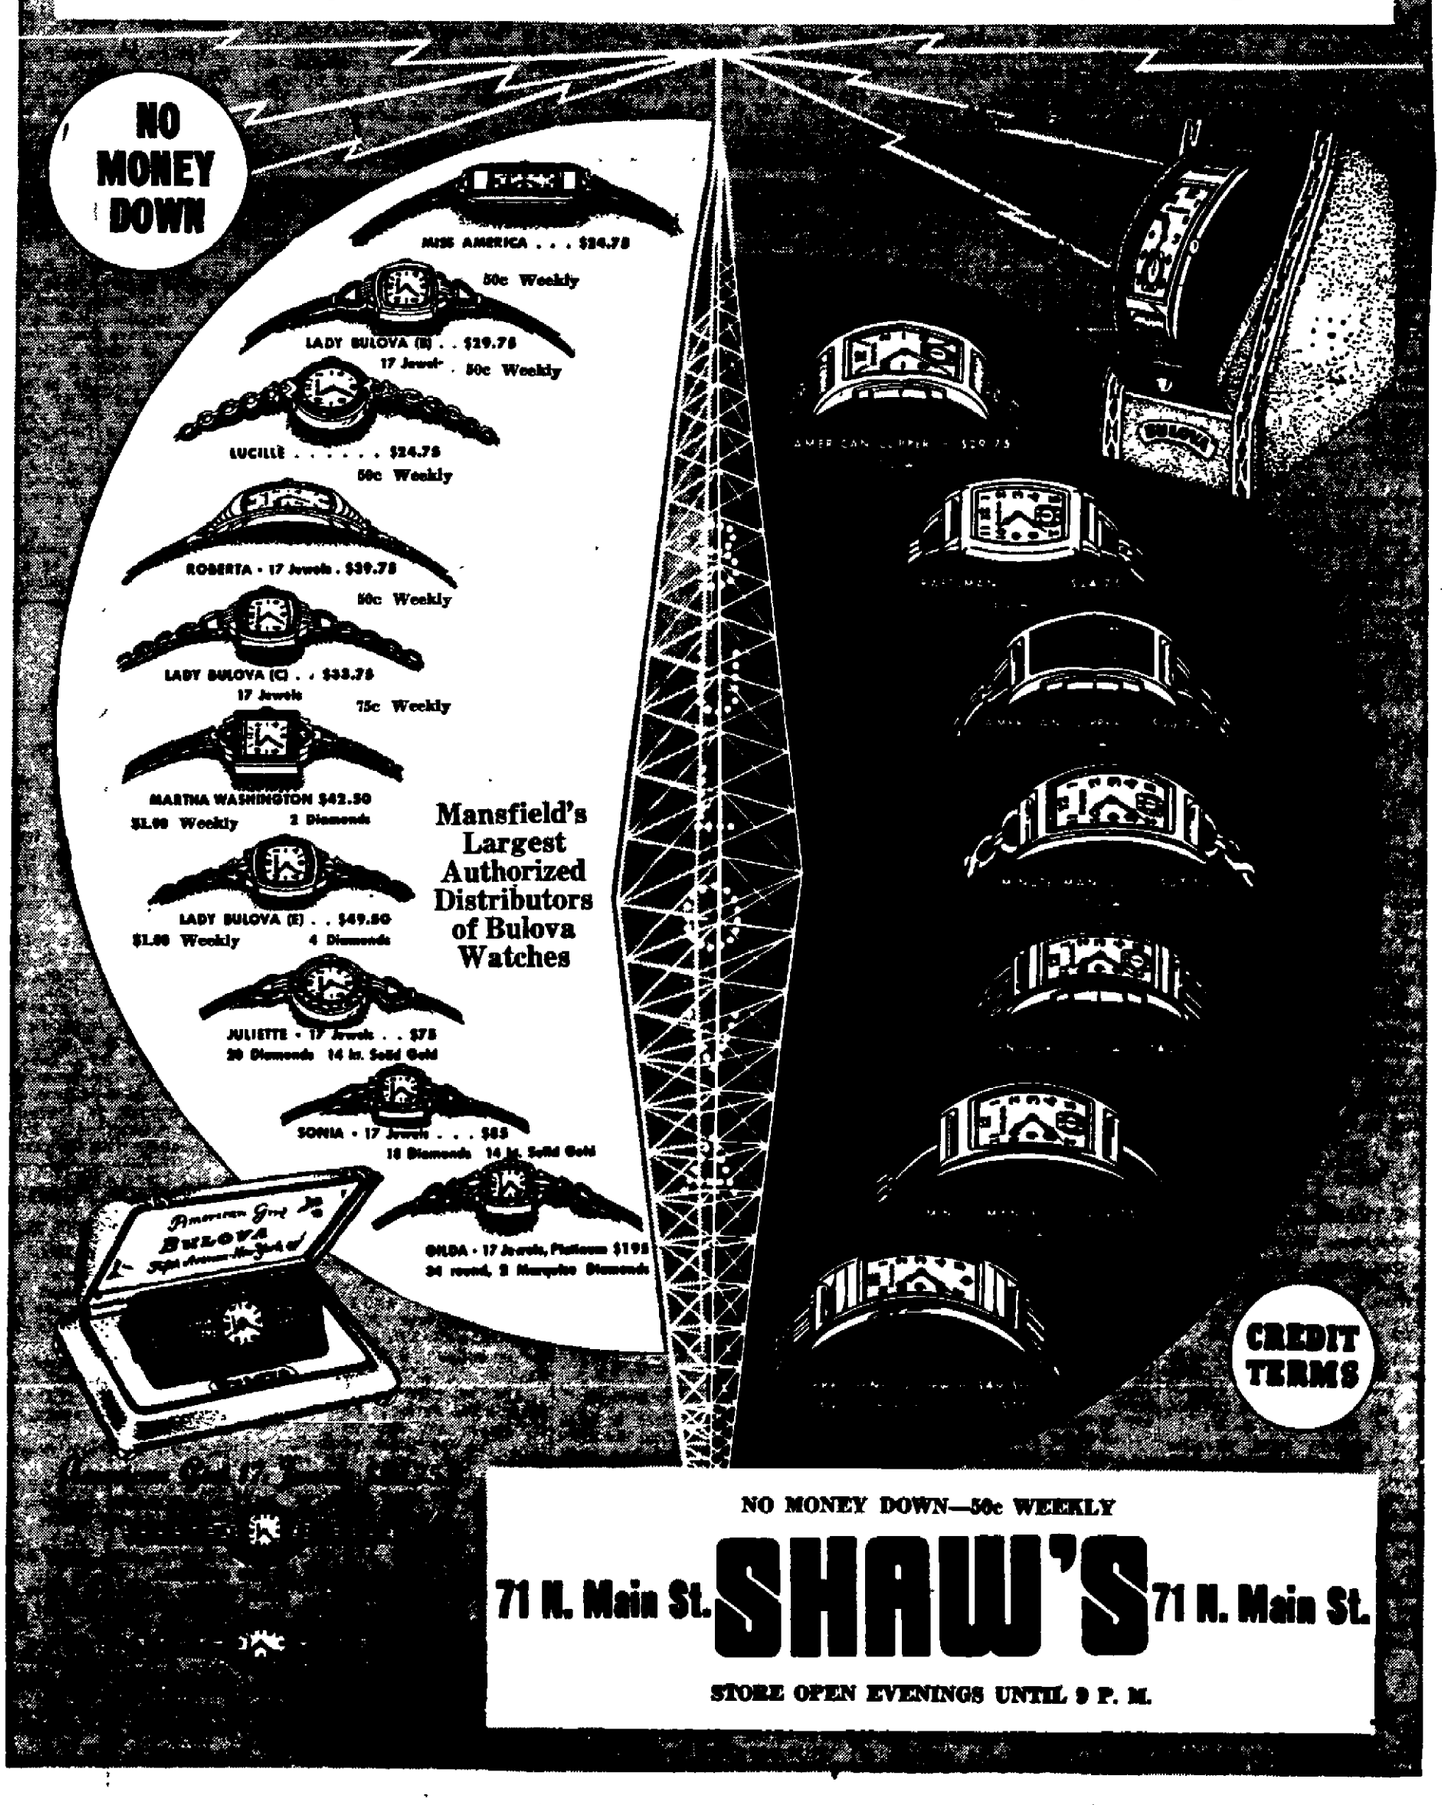

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

Remember, as soon as a cold makes its appearance, turn to Bromo Quinine tablets!

Ask for—and demand—Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets)! No reliable druggist will offer you a substitute.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1937.

The administration seems determined to hammer business into whole-hearted co-operation.

It appears that the farm problem has become more acute since it doesn't start so early in the morning.

Prediction is made that Detroit will have 3,000,000 population by 1950—and there'll probably be some who will want to sit down and think this over.

Stick-Up Bandits Must Be Caught.

THE fact that arrest is being temporarily eluded by the two fellows who pulled the stick-up job in Mansfield last Saturday noon should not be taken to mean that the men will not be caught—or that they will escape punishment for their crime.

Nor should it be forgotten, in carrying on the search for these criminals, that their offense goes far beyond the mere theft of money and carries through to a willingness to kill, if necessary, in order to commit a robbery and make their escape.

It was only good fortune, in this instance, that nobody was killed or badly injured by the gunmen. Continuation of similar tactics could scarcely fail to at least occasionally result in murder.

This is one of the cases in which there should be full co-operation of all the law enforcement agencies of the state in efforts to apprehend and imprison the bandits. The forays of big-city gangsters into smaller communities are becoming so common as to demand drastic suppression.

Punished for His Achievements.

FOR one who has committed no crime, the penalty being inflicted on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh appears to be heavier than he deserves.

The unheralded return of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to the United States, after a two-years absence, has not only been made the occasion for widespread publicity, with surreptitious pictures obtained by "alert" photographers, but has also opened the way for revamping the story of the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby and the eventual Hauptmann trial and execution.

The treatment that has been accorded Col. Lindbergh and his family has been such as to almost justify a wish on his part that he had not achieved so notably—in order that he might be permitted the privacy he craves—and that he might again make his home in the land of his birth without having his every move pried into and publicized.

Responsibility of Drunken Driver.

MUCH adverse criticism is being directed toward an eastern judge who freed a motorist of a manslaughter charge on the ground that the accused was "too intoxicated to know what he was doing."

It appears that, in driving while intoxicated, the motorist had killed a man and his little son.

It has become quite generally accepted, in this generation, that a person shall be held legally responsible for acts committed while drunk— although he may have no recollection of such acts.

An intoxicated driver must always be regarded as a potential killer, and must therefore be held responsible for his conduct while drunk—although he may have no knowledge of what occurred while he was dazed by liquor.

While criticism of the court appears to be fully justified in this case, there is the possibility that the judge had a thought in the back of his mind that some of the responsibility also rested on the public.

Examination Before Marriage.

THE first month of operation of Michigan's new prenuptial physical examination law indicates that about one per cent of applicants for marriage licenses show signs of syphilis, which is comparable to results obtained in Illinois and Connecticut, where similar laws are operative.

The required medical examination of applicants for marriage licenses must be made within 15 days before the application is filed.

According to Dr. C. C. Slemons, state health commissioner, "The law has met with little opposition. The number of marriages is returning to normal, now that there is a more general understanding of the operation of the law and its objective in protecting the health of prospective families."

Ohio will, of course, eventually enact a similar law. Just how long this will be deferred will depend on how long it takes to awaken public consciousness to the danger of permitting syphilitics to mate and produce sub-normal children.

Brain-Baffling Laws.

TWO SENTENCES from the farm bill now being studied in Congress were quoted the other day by a critic who said the bill, as written, is impossible to understand. The sentences are:

> "The marketing quota for any farm shall be the amount of the current crop of the commodity produced on the farm less the normal yield of the farm acreage planted to such crop in excess of the percentage, as proclaimed under this section of the farm's soil-depleting base acreage for such crop. In no event shall the marketing quota for any farm be less than the normal yield of half of the soil-depleting base acreage for the farm."

These, says the critic, are typical of the whole bill. They do seem a little obscure at first reading, even to citizens who have mastered income tax forms and insurance policies.

If this or any other law is to work, the language will have to be simplified. The meaning must be made so clear that citizens will not go wrong in their effort to live up to it, and enforcers will know what they have to enforce. Why should any statutes or documents be complicated and obscure to people of ordinary intelligence?

A democracy, says a cynical observer, is a nation that talks it over and agrees that something ought to be done, then doesn't do it.

An Indiana man laughed so hard at a joke that he cracked two ribs—and Charlie McCarthy should be careful not to be as funny as he can.

Maybe this isn't so much of a reCESSION as it is a rePRESSION.

LETTERS TO SANTA

Belief Expressed Recession Will Be Short

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt is acting on the very general feeling among business men that the present recession will not be prolonged. This is very important to the administration, for it means that business is planning to go ahead in the spring and that the president can shape his plans accordingly.

One of the "confirmations" of these reports by business men to the White House is the surprisingly large number of plants which are going on part-time production instead of shutting down.

The housing program is counted on to set the stage for a revival of construction fairly early in the year, even if other conditions fail to clear up. While it is not expected to show a big spurt, it is conceded by the administration's business experts to be the president's best bet. Their studies indicate that housing is the one industry that can move against depression.

There is a lot of ballyhoo about other White House moves to start the business wheels turning more rapidly, but actually they fade into insignificance as compared with the real hopes for the housing program plus the alleged information that business itself expects the recession to be short.

* * *

MANY of the items about which there has been so much ballyhoo lack substance. For instance that big "story" about the government speeding up purchase of $245,000,000 of supplies that otherwise would be spread over the remainder of the current fiscal year. Actually, while this made a good story, it was very poor psychology. It virtually said to every business man that there is going to be a deceptive demand for goods for the first few months of the year, which will be followed by a hard bump because the government will have completed its buying.

Another bad piece of propaganda, so far as the psychological effect is concerned, was the recommendation to cut down the amount of federal appropriations for road building. This was branded as a business restorative, on the theory that it was a step in the direction of budget balancing.

Actually it was not only attacked bitterly on Capitol Hill by statesmen who did not want the appropriations helping their own states and districts cut off, but was also attacked by economists not interested in pork. These pointed out that the time to spend government money on useful public projects is in depression, or recession if that term is preferred. But when employment is a real problem is no time to save money in that particular way.

Incidentally, of course, there is little prospect that this step towards balancing the budget will be made. Congress is not in favor of it. Certainly it is not in favor of handing over any discretion as to the parceling out of money to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace or any other bureaucrat.

* * *

OF ALL the ways of distributing federal pork, that for highway construction is probably the fairest. Log-rolling has been eliminated by a simple formula which shows just how much any particular community rates. That formula was worked out with midnight oil and infinite compromise. The Roosevelt plan would scrap it, so congress is not going to yield.

Meanwhile probably the most important aid to recovery is coming from Capitol Hill, where the leaders have taken the bit into their teeth on the tax reform bill and are paying no attention to White House concern over what may happen to New Deal objectives.

Do Women Get a Fair Deal In Business?

SHE wants me to write about "the business world's unfairness to working women."

I won't. I can't. Because I don't think it is.

But aren't women paid less than men for the same work? Yes, they frequently are. Wouldn't I, myself, get more for this job if I were a man? Maybe I would. But I still don't think it's unfair that I don't. To the contrary, I believe that there are sound reasons why women aren't paid as much as men, today . . . why they aren't actually worth as much, even if they work as well.

The thing can be put in a nutshell — WOMEN, IN THE MASS, STILL DON'T KNOW WHAT THEY WANT OR WHERE THEY'RE GOING . . . AND THE MEN WHO HIRE THEM MUST CONSIDER THAT UNCERTAINTY WHEN THEY SET THEIR WAGE.

This confusion is based on the simple fact that Nature intended Women to do one thing, and circumstances have forced them into a quite different program. Nature meant women to be mates, mothers, housekeepers. Now, every 3 out of 5 of the young ones are clerical workers.

But it isn't entirely Woman's fault that she departed from the natural plan. Men demoralized the home before women deserted it. How? By robbing it of those crafts which made home-making a proud and profitable job.

Housekeeping was once diversified enough to satisfy the most restless female. At the turn of the century wives were still expert craftsmen, as their mothers had been. I remember my own bridal pride in miles of almost invisible "hand hemming" . . . in a cellar stocked with hundreds of quarts of pickles, preserves, jellies, jams, "rhubarb and grape "shrub." But that pride was short-lived. The Machine Age was roaring in. Presently men were doing the baking and brewing, sewing and washing.

And today any smart gal can do all necessary housework in a couple of hours. Then what?

Then the office. Sometimes because she's restless—despises idleness. But usually because she must. Wedlock comes high. Girls must work or boys can't marry. So young Mrs. Robert Jones remains Tillie the expert Toiler . . . doing her work, efficiently, as any man. Yet, chances are, getting a third or half as much pay.

"Is that fair?" snap thousands of indignant ladies.

I think it is . . . at this stage in our development. You have to consider more than the quality or quantity of work when you pay a worker. There's the problem of staying put. Is, or isn't, the woman worker there to stay?

A man stays on his job, regardless . . . marriage, real or prospective, makes little difference. But marriage still makes a tremendous difference with women. The Machine Age may have changed her industrial program but it hasn't even dented her emotional reaction.

Marriage is still the normal feminine goal. And it's bound to create complications which no male worker knows. If a woman worker isn't married, she wants to be. It's on her mind. And you never can tell how she'll act . . . or how that action will affect her work. If she is married, it's even more on her mind. She's carrying two jobs. She may have had a row with her husband. Junior may have the measles. That's bad for any worker's nerves . . . any boss's business. So what?

So the woman worker is still penalized because of her sex . . . and her sex's normal occupation and preoccupation.

Is that fair? We're as bright as men . . . as loyal to our jobs . . . as reliable individually. But are we as safe an industrial bet I think we're—NOT!

And wotta spot that's going to put me on! But it's all right, girls—I can take it. So let's hear YOUR side of the story.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

British Appraisal of U. S. Plight.

AN APPRAISAL of President Roosevelt's policies that may surprise many Americans appears in England's foremost journal of opinion—The News Statesman and Nation. (It must be remembered that this Journal has a liberal point of view—in the United States it might be called Progressive or radical.)

This appraisal is headed "The President Temporises."

Here is the nub of the article:

"In comparison with that of France the situation facing Mr. Roosevelt in the United States has points both of difference and similarity. There is no M. Chautemps waiting to step into the presidential shoes; there has been no exodus of American capital abroad, and the budgetary deficit with which Mr. Morgenthau has to deal is much less intractable than that which broke M. Vincent-Auriol.

"On the other hand, President Roosevelt, like M. Blum, has mobilized against his administration the passive resistance of almost the whole capitalist class.

"Leaving out of account the various economic fictions created by the less successful experiments in New Deal planning, the nature of the 'jam' in which the United States government now finds itself can be summarized in a few words. Having salvaged a shipwrecked financial and banking system in 1932-33, the president jollied America, albeit belatedly, some way along the road of general world recovery by prodigal expenditure from the federal treasury on relief and constructional works, whose effect, coupled with currency depreciation, cheap money and AAA rehabilitation of farm incomes, was a pronounced expansion of consumers' demand, reaching its climax a year ago with the $2,000 million dollar veterans' bonus.

"Alarmed at the possibilities of a boom in consumers' goods and a serious price-inflation, Mr. Roosevelt began, in 1937, to abate the process of 'pump-priming.' Federal expenditure was reduced, financial orthodoxy promised in future budgets, checks imposed on further expansion of banking credit.

"Having set the machine going, the president looked for a 'natural' growth of momentum—only to find that his governmental outlays had masked the absence of private capital investment in housing, factories and plant; that Big Business, antagonized by the social reforms, competitive federal enterprises, progressive taxation and anti-speculation enactments of the New Deal, had gone quietly on strike; and that as soon as consumers' demands began to flag on the cessation of federal boosting, the wage increases won by labor with the tacit blessing of the White House produced a formidable disequilibrium in capitalist economy, intensified recently by the fall in raw material prices."

* * *

BUT NOW—?

"From this impasse the president can extricate himself only by moving decisively to the left or to the right; and for all the non-committal temporizing of his message to congress (at the opening of the special session) there can be little doubt that is to the right that he will delicately move.

"The slump continues, engrossing the attention of the United States to the exclusion of any faint hopes there were that the government was preparing to play a more active part in world politics. Mr. Roosevelt cannot afford to watch passively the development of another major economic crisis, in whose stagnation and misery social order in America might easily perish. Currency devaluation is a trick which cannot be successfully played twice; credit, unused, is already ample; a further dose of inflationary federal expenditure, at the cost of abandoning every prospect of budgetary equilibrium, would today result in frightening investors and still further deterring private enterprise.

"The only alternatives are to replace the partial planning of the New Deal by extended government interference on a nation-wide scale and to convert the United States gradually into a socialist republic, or to give Big Business a free hand, repeal all anti-speculative taxes, shut down on TVA experiments, and let the leaders of Wall Street, the utilities, banks, railways and steel 'pull things around' in their own way."

* * *

IS IT A "RACKET"?

The article continues:

"If the capitalist racket in the United States is to work, the racketeers—as the president is beginning painfully to realize—must be allowed to make their own rules. And Mr. Roosevelt is unprepared to take up the challenge which Big Business has flung down.

"Because he was a liberal, denying the existence of a class conflict, he was ideally equipped to pull up American psychology in 1933 from the despond of depression, when capitalism was sufficiently frightened to be willing to accept a dictator who preached social justice but saved Wall Street from financial disintegration at the price of being regimented by a securities and exchange commission.

"Because he remains a liberal, clinging pathetically to the belief that social justice and capitalism are compatible, he will lead no revolutionary assault against the system of production for profit. This being so, his surrender to the entrenched financial interests may be gradual, but it will be as certain as the post-war capitulation of Mr. Lloyd George, with whose political makeup he has so much in common. The president is not the man to die for causes which have lost their popularity.

"With industrial 'shutdowns' looming ahead and congress openly rebellious, the New Deal, it is to be feared, is destined to go the safe way as the Land Fit for Heroes.

"Mr. Roosevelt's empirical liberalism, when it comes to the test of the class issue, is not enduring stuff."

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND—

Tuberculosis Treated By Surgery.

NOT LONG AGO I spoke of the marked strides taken in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis. It was mentioned that in certain selected cases a new form of treatment is available. Reference was made to the so-called "lung collapse treatment" of tuberculosis. The diseased lung is deliberately brought into a state of collapse, so that the cavity caused by the disease may have an opportunity to heal.

I have received numerous inquiries concerning this form of treatment. For this reason, it is well for me to go more into detail about it, explaining the method of producing what the doctors call "pneumothorax," or air in the pleural cavity.

How Lungs Work.

To understand the procedure, you should bear in mind that the lungs lie in what is called the pleural sac. Imagine two rubber balloons, a smaller one placed inside a larger one, the little balloon representing the lungs. The space between the outer wall of the smaller balloon corresponds to the lungs, and the inner wall of the larger balloon to the pleural cavity.

A watery secretion serves to lubricate the surfaces so that they glide over each other without friction. To use our original figure, the smaller balloon can expand and contract without rubbing or irritating the outer balloon.

Under certain circumstances, the membrane I have described becomes infected and inflamed. Then there appear the stitching pain and other symptoms of pleurisy.

Assuming that the lung is diseased and the cavity created does not heal, the doctor proposes to collapse the lung to bring together the walls of the cavity. To do this he thrusts a needle through the chest wall and forces air into the pleural sac, producing compression of the lung and closure of the cavity.

To keep the lung collapsed it is necessary to pump in a little more air at definite intervals—"refills," the patient calls them. They are necessary to keep the lung in a collapsed state. The original procedure and the refilling may seem to be pretty unpleasant, but really they are accomplished easily and without pain.

After the lung is collapsed, the patient rests in bed. In due time he goes about his affairs, carrying on his normal activities.

This form of treatment is useful only in certain cases. In these it has proved to be of great value to the sufferers from tuberculosis. Undoubtedly the procedure has saved thousands of lives. Whether the treatment is indicated can only be determined by the physician familiar with the case.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON—

Brighter Day.

Why not believe tomorrow is
A brighter, better day?
If grief and sorrow are your lot,
They have not come to stay.

Why not believe in sun-fair hours,
And think that 'round the bend
You will discover all the joy
That happiness can lend.

Why pull the dark clouds down about
You, shut the window blinds?
Let sunlight in the room and see
It where it gaily shines.

And pretty soon your heart will lift
To dreams as fair as day.
And you will know that grief and pain
Can never come to stay.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Some men never give religion a thought until they are sick in bed.

But for adversity some men would never know how little they can borrow.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THERE was great head-wagging as to what would happen to the town's most fashionable restaurant, The Colony, when Ernest Cerutti passed away at sea on his annual visit to Italy a year ago. Ernest, with his partner Gene, now in command, piloted the place to its deserved fame.

They were considered masters in team work. A "united we stand, divided we fall" combination. But Gene has carried on alone successfully. The Colony is the only place to inspire free write-ups in Town and Country, The New Yorker and Fortune. Its clientele is top notch.

The place is without pomp, inside and out. The entrance a few steps off Madison in the 60's is up a short, narrow flight of steps. The bar and reception room are postage stamp size. No flunkies in livery. Just Bill, the wash room boy, who knows society better than the Social Register.

The dining room itself is small but clean and comfortable. Crowds do not flock to the Colony. The prices are high and food is the thing. Undesirables somehow never go back. There is no music, and by 10 o'clock waiters begin stacking chairs on the tables.

Frazier Hunt is still another writer to drift from world capitals to the isolation of a ranch in Alberta. For years the Alexis, Ill., born scribbler has been making his base in such Cosmopolitan centers as London, New York and Shanghai. His acres adjoin the Canadian place owned by the Duke of Windsor. Along with his literary output, Hunt is making a success of cattle raising and comes to New York only to talk things over with editors.

Chop chop: For the first time I came upon an intoxicated Chinese yesterday. Beautifully bottled, he was weaving across 54th street with a handful of ivory hewn back scratchers which he was trying to sell after bowing and delivering his sing-song talk.

Down in the bar at Whyte's venerable restaurant on Fulton street is a painting of Herald Square, done in 1900. It was also on view at the Buffalo fair when President McKinley was shot. Jim Corbett's saloon is shown in the foreground and there is a conspicuous sign — "manicure, pedicure, coiffure"— hands, feet and head. Even 37 years ago the beauticians were in evidence.

Like Job, the thing which they greatly fear seems to come upon the radio announcers. Namely, strange throat troubles which deprive them of voice. There's scarcely a week one is not stricken with laryngitis and there is that affliction called "fimpics" which often comes, lightning-like, to render a victim hoarse just before broadcasting. In the pockets of such experts as Clem McCarthy, Graham McNamee, Sam Taub and other gatling-gun-gabbers will always be found palliatives. Rudy Vallee and Floyd Gibbons use a pellet that costs several dollars for a small packet.

The zipper vogue, along with the economics of the world, has played hob with the calling of lady's maid. The tedious problem of dealing with hooks and eyes and buttons is now accomplished with a quick swish of the wrist. Even the elaborate evening gowns that required so much maid service are now zipperized. An expert lady's maid was one of the most highly specialized callings, usually held by trained French or German girls. Many of them got as high as $125 a month and their keep. Today the Job Wanted columns are filled with their pleas for work.

In the days when the theater was theater, the lady's maid to a great star lived in the grand manner. She was the buffer between star and public. Tips were hefty. Also, the maid traveled from city to city, often in private coach, and resided in the royal suites of magnificent hotels. Lily Laugtry's maid, Gwennie, became almost as famous as her mistress. She was Titian haired, of the voluptuous Lillian Russell type, and was followed across the country by two of New York's reigning beaux of that era. I recall leaning against a post across from The Casino so long to watch her leave the stage exit one evening that a cop nudged me to move on. That was the time I told him, walking away fast, that I was a free born American citizen and had my rights, so I had.

Timely Editorial

Applies To Both Sexes.

The arrival at Ohio penitentiary of Mrs. Anna Hahn, to await the execution of her death sentence, makes more vivid the realization that the state of Ohio is about to take the life of a woman for the first time in the electric chair. Already there are indications that as the day for her death draws near there will be an increasing volume of protest against the carrying out of the sentence.

The law, however, makes no distinction in persons. Ohio law sanctions capital punishment for the crime of murder. If it is to apply to men who have deliberately taken the lives of their fellowmen, it must equally apply to women who have committed the same crime. Mrs. Hahn was fairly convicted. Her sentence of death was imposed because she deliberately plotted the death of another human being, and succeeded in carrying out her intention. The fate decreed for her by the court did not arise from a spirit of vengeance, but is sanctioned as a means of protecting society against the possibility of any further murders by a known killer.—Columbus Dispatch.

A JOYRIDE OF LAFFS!

Addresses Club

Dr. William R. Westhafer, above, dean of Wooster college and head of the school's physics department, will address the Mansfield Schoolmasters' club Wednesday night at a dinner meeting at the First M. E. church. His topic will be "Are We Getting an Education?"

THEATER

Hasty Glimpses . . . Joan Blondell's Christmas present from Dick Powell will be the ritziest looking roadster in Hollywood. It's a cutdown job with a specially built motor . . . To a small circle of friends, Will Rogers' family sometimes show his old pictures. The other night they ran off "The Roping Fool," made by the late comedian in 1919. Now that the first shock of grief is over, it is one of their ways of keeping Will alive in their memories . . . George Brent cracked two ribs in a spill from a horse . . . John Boles is now celebrating his tenth anniversary in pictures.

Big Town Girl.

Beginning Wednesday, the Madison will present Claire Trevor with Donald Woods, Alan Dinehart, and Alan Baxter in a fast moving drama of what can happen to a girl in the big city. Three men and a girl form the exciting plot of this Twentieth-Century Fox film, "Big Town Girl." Miss Trevor, wife of a bank-robber, finds her life suddenly in danger, takes a job as a singer, is given a grand build-up by a publicity man, (Alan Dinehart) takes to the airwaves, is followed by her husband and finally untangles the excitement in a flood-bound hotel when Claire, her husband, and Woods, a reporter, meet.

Annapolis Movie.

Performances of Lionel Barrymore as the veteran coach and Robert Young as the football playing midshipman who is intent upon getting some place the quickest way, make the movie now showing at the Ohio, "Navy Blue and Gold," one of the top-notchers of its kind. True to life pictures of the naval academy and the depicting of the stringent rules and regulations imposed on youths in the service give the movie-goer a rather better than usual glimpse of academy life. The brilliant repartee and the scenes make the picture one of tense action and fine entertainment.

Some Blondes Dangerous.

"Some Blondes Are Dangerous" is one of the two features opening at the Majestic today. This is a common variety of plot with a strong he-man prize-fighter going soft and sissy all on account of a blonde. Noah Berry, jr., plays the role of the fighter with Dorothea Kent capably doing the job of the blonde. All being well that ends well the characters scamper about the United States and Europe and in the end Berry comes to his senses somewhat with the aid of the old girl friend, Nan Grey. The second picture is "They Won't Forget."

• • •

"Topper."

Along with Kay Francis in "Confession" at the Ritz, Constance Bennett and Carey Grant will be presented in the roaring Hal Roach production, "Topper," today, Wednesday and Thursday. When a play-boy and girl marry and make a team something is bound to happen. Traditionally and somewhat shockingly this pair are killed in an auto crash. Inconguous as it may seem the Grant-Bennett combination comes back as ghosts to haunt Bennet Young. Nothing could exceed the astounding adventures and rivaid situations the trio become involved in.

INQUIRIES FROM HUNDREDS KEEP SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICE BUSY

"I lost my Social Security account card. How do I get a new one?"

"Can you give me some facts about the Social Security act for a high school essay?"

"Do I notify the Social Security board when I change my home address?"

"John Smith, our neighbor, died last month, and his wife has three minor children to support. She has no money. Can she receive help for them under the Social Security act?"

"What is the difference between old-age insurance and old-age assistance?"

"How do I file claim for a lump sum benefit?"

"When does unemployment compensation go into effect in this state?"

These are typical of the questions which come into a field office of the Social Security board, R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield office in the Richland Trust building said today. They come in by mail, and they are asked in personal visits, he said.

No phase of the Social Security program seems to be overlooked when the day's mail is gone over.

"Such inquiries are welcomed by us," Mish says. "We want everyone to feel free to use the facilities of this office in helping to solve problems and situations which may be related to the Social Security act.

"Of course some of these problems are not handled directly by the field office. For example, questions about old-age assistance within the state, or aid to the blind, or to the dependent children, have to do with programs which are administered through a state agency. However, by referring the inquirer to the proper division or department which handles these matters, we can set that person on the right track."

The actual administrative job of the field office, Mish explained, is limited to the old-age insurance program of the Social Security act. At the present time the work of his office falls into two chief categories. There are assignment of account numbers to participants in the old-age insurance program, and assisting claimants for lump-sum benefit payments.

These payments are payable to workers in occupations covered by the Social Security act who have reached the age of 65.

COUNCIL FACES FLOOD OF BILLS IN LAST SESSION

Ordinance Creating Position of Stenographer For Police Included In Legislation.

City council, rather weary after the batterings it has absorbed in the past two years, will be faced tonight, in its last regular session with a flood of legislation filed with Council Clerk William J. Beer.

While the major portion of the measures call for the transfer of funds and supplemental appropriations to cover departmental expenditures for the balance of the year, the one piece of legislation deals with the police department.

An ordinance asking council to create the position of stenographer-clerk in the police department had been prepared today and will be presented by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

The ordinance calls for a monthly salary of $75 and fixes bond at $1,000. It is designed as an emergency measure.

Would Provide Extra Man.

Bates said that if the position is created by council tonight he can place the clerk in charge of the traffic bureau and make Patrolman H. G. Palmer, who now handles the records and files, available for duty on the outside.

"This would add another man to patrol duty at about half the money necessary to employ another officer," he said.

Bates said an 18-year-old girl, who has been helping in the detective bureau, would get the position.

"The position would not be created for her, but I am reasonably sure that she can handle the job," he said.

Miss Helen Baughman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Baughman, a grocer at 10 South Adams, has been doing stenographic work for the detective department for the past six weeks. She is not on the city payroll, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said.

Municipal court attaches will watch with a great deal of interest tonight when a resubmission of an ordinance requesting a supplemental appropriation for $110 is presented to council.

The appropriation asked by Court Clerk Allen K. Ports for the purchase of stationery and stamps was tabled Nov. 17 by council when Auditor Kelly said the general fund was in a depleted condition.

Since that time the court has borrowed stamps from other departments and deputies have even dug into their own pockets to purchase stamps for mail that had to be sent out.

Rotarians Learn Of Trailers From Woman Speaker

Life as it is lived on a trailer trip was vividly portrayed at today's Rotary club meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel by Miss Katherine Hartman, who told of her five-months tour with several other members of the family.

The trip included stops in Florida and Texas, a visit to Mexico City, then west to Los Angeles, up the Pacific coast to Seattle, and short stays at several of the national parks.

Experiences in trailer camps, pleasant and disagreeable incidents of the trip and observations of typical trailerites in various parts of the country, provided material for the informative and amusing talk.

Lewis Hartman, vice president of the club and brother of the speaker, was chairman of the meeting.

William C. Mead, chairman of the crippled children's committee, announced that the annual Christmas party for children will be held next Tuesday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

DAVEY CONFIDENT U. S. WILL PERMIT EARLY JOB PAYMENTS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Gov. Martin L. Davey, of Ohio, expressed confidence today that federal approval would be given his plan to start payment of unemployment insurance benefits a year earlier than now provided by state law.

After a hearing on the governor's proposal to start payments next January instead of January, 1939, the social security board announced that Attorney General Cummings would decide the plan's legality.

Should the attorney-general rule against the proposal, the board said it would recommend a congressional amendment to the social security act to permit states to pay benefits one year—instead of two—after the start of tax collections.

"We are going to swing into action on the assumption our plan will be approved both by the legislature and federal authorities," said Davey after the hearing.

The governor said he would confer with Ohio congressmen about the board's suggested amendment. Approval of the Ohio plan was voiced by Senator Bulkley (D., Ohio), who attended the hearing.

The plan, Davey said, involved a "technicality" concerning whether the state had met the "intent" of congress. He said Ohio fulfilled the act's two-year collection requirement by assessing 1936 payrolls, even though the law did not become effective until Dec. 21, 1936.

Experience in 23 states, the board said, indicated "it would take at least until July 1, 1938, before the Ohio unemployment compensation commission would have the necessary staff recruited and trained and the necessary offices and equipment provided in order to insure that full compensation would be paid promptly when due."

DUPONT OFFERS PLAN TO GIVE 3,000,000 JOBS

$25,000,000,000 Investment By Industry Figures In Extensive Proposal.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A two-to-ten-year plan to create 3,000,000 new jobs through planned investment of $25,000,000,000 by private industry was proposed today by Lammot du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and company, in an address at the National Association of Manufacturers convention.

Du Pont pictured bringing about of a new era with eventual elimination of poverty and unemployment, through this threefold program:

1. "Development and popularization of new products."
2. "Vastly broadening the market for existing products through lowering their cost."
3. "Maintaining a rule of fair return for all effort, not excepting capital effort."

Government Must Help.

Industry can put this plan into effect, he said, if given a "fair opportunity" through a threefold governmental pledge covering these points:

1. "Stabilizaton of tax rates over a definite period."
2. "Stabilization of fair laboring conditions over a definite period."
3. Immediate stabilization of the "legal rules" under which business must operate, subject only to "unmistakable public demand" for amendment.

He said the actual rate of taxes, or the actual scale of wages or hours, were not as important as stabilization.

Du Pont was emphatic in saying he was criticizing "nobody" for past difficulties.

"What has been done, wisely or unwisely, is behind us," he said. "Let us leave it there. It is no time for post mortems."

While he suggested no detailed plans for a $25,000,000,000 financing program, a task he described as "staggering," comparable to the government's World war financing which was managed by co-operation of all agencies, du Pont, whose financial ability is respected in Wall street, said "it is neither hopeless nor impossible."

CHALLENGE TO CHIZZLEWITS

THERE once was a merchant named Chizzlewit who trimmed his tree every Christmas and his customers every day.

He was a canny creature, this Chizzlewit, and knew how to win a customer by guile. The shirts he sold were cheaply woven, packed with powder to make them seem firm. To conceal their inferiority he told customers that he always wore them himself. In the glassware department he "made up" for poor quality by giving a set of pretty paper doilies with every purchase. He knew many such clever tricks and used them without reserve.

Chizzlewit never advertised. He knew too well he could never fool people for long in print.

Advertising must live up to its own claims. That is why you can have full confidence in goods consistently advertised. If the product is unworthy, the printed word will only expose it sooner.

Christmas, and all around the calendar, read advertising. Makers and merchants stake their reputation, in cold black type, that what you read is true.

VOTES TO CUT PASSING MARGIN ON TAX LEVIES

House Tax Committee Lowers Required Popular Vote to 55 Per Cent.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Compromising a rural-urban fight that threatened a legislative impasse in the state relief program, the house taxation committee recommended today lowering from 65 to 55 per cent the favorable popular vote required for imposing por relief tax levies by local communities.

The committee vote was 13 to 9, one vote more than needed to recommend.

Gov. Martin L. Davey and administration leaders proposed making a bare majority adequate for such levies and were opposed by real estate and industrial interests. Representatives of the Ohio chamber of commerce protested against the proposal also but approved the 55 per cent plan.

Win First Skirmish.

Rural members of the house of rerepresentatives won the first skirmish in the fight yesterday when they prevented the house taxation committee from recommending the reduction for statutory welfare levies. The vote was a 10 to 10 tie, 12 votes being necessary to recommend.

The battle was resumed today with the ruralites proposing alternative means for obtaining relief funds, other than by real estate levies. Representatives from the large urban centers insisted their only hope of obtaining local funds to match state grants were through extra tax levies voted by a majority.

Rep. Carl F. Wintzer (D-Auglaize) urged the committee to adopt his proposal to permit counties to use most of their revenues from the automobile license fees. He said they could obtain $8,000,000 in that manner, which together with an allotment of $6,500,000 from the sales tax and $1,500,000 from admissions taxes would produce $16,000,000 for relief.

Another alternative for reducing the vote requirement for tax levies was made by Rep. P. E. Ward (R-Geauga) who suggested extending the three cent sales tax to electric, water, telephone and gas utilities. The consumer would pay the tax.

"Such a tax would produce all the money necessary for matching state allotments," Ward said. He said the ordinary householders' utility tax would not be more than 30 or 40 cents a month, but that the large industrial concerns would pay hundreds of dollars.

Head of Horse Breeders Says Fair Board Rejected Plan to Include Horse Show.

H. E. Miller, incumbent, for the director's post from Washington township, charged that Saturday's election was not conducted according to state laws governing county fairs and that directors therefore were not elected legally.

"We still contend rules were broken at the annual meeting. The law states all members must be given notice three weeks prior to the annual meeting by letter or through a newspaper," the statement said.

"Notice this year was given two days previous to the meeting. Under the laws all newly elected members have been illegally elected," he said.

Lehnhart's statement also accused the fair board of withholding the annual financial report of the exposition at Saturday's meeting.

Answering the charges Saturday, R. D. Hale, president of the board, said the secretary had not been able to settle the fair accounts and compile a report because a few bills were still outstanding. He promised a complete report at the meeting of directors late this month.

HEALTH BOARD 'CLEARS ROOM'

Hears Distributors' Protest Against Law, Then Conducts 'Private Business.'

the dealers association, said he represented 26 distributors of raw milk in the city and that they had drafted the resolution which he presented.

"We emphatically oppose the proposed legislation, now being considered by the Mansfield board of health which calls for compulsory pasteurization of all milk delivered in the city of Mansfield" the resolution stated.

Argue On Public Demand.

It pointed out that "there is no public demand for such legislation and that no emergency exists making advisable the pasteurization of the city's raw milk supply."

Board members pointed out that although no emergency existed, that was no reason why they should wait until one arises before issuing the order.

"That's like locking the barn after the horse has been stolen," Dr. Rehder said.

Bierly, as he did at the last meeting of the board, voted against the measure.

"I can't concede that the weight of evidence is such that the board of health is justified in making arbitrary use of its authority," he said.

He advocated instead rigid inspections for producers of grade "A" raw milk now being sold in the city under the existing ordinance.

Robinson said the association was not opposed to pasteurized milk, but they did want the market left open so they could market their supply of raw milk.

He contended that if the measure was made compulsory, that he would have to go out of business, "for the volume of business that I do would not permit me to buy pasteurization equipment."

He asserted that the ordinance would be playing into the hands of a few of the larger plants and that the producer would then have to market his supply to them at the price they wanted to pay.

Board members explained that the pasteurization ordinance was was to be invoked only as a safety factor and it was with this in mind that they had considered it.

Kenneth Nixon, another association representative, admitted that milk, not from approved farms, was being "bootlegged" into the city. He said that he knew of distributors who were buying the "bootleg" product and retailing it in Mansfield.

Robinson pointed out that pasteurization equipment alone would cost nearly $3,000, more than the average farmer could afford to spend to produce and distribute his product.

Ashland Civil War Veteran Observes 94th Anniversary

ASHLAND—No pomp and ceremony, but the quiet passing of just another day marks the 4th birthday anniversary of William Rittenhouse, Ashland, oldest surviving member of the 120th regiment of O. V. I., who served three years during the Civil war.

Born in Blachleyville, Dec. 7, 1843, Mr. Rittenhouse joined the Union forces at the age of 18 at Mansfield, Sept. 18, 1862, and served throughout the war as a member of three different units, before being discharged July 31, 1865, at Houston, Tex.

Today, he makes his home with a cousin, Mrs. William Weaver, in Ashland, where he received many callers.

Weakened from a fall several weeks ago, Mr. Rittenhouse is confined to his bed much of the time.

He was plowing in his father's field on the day he enlisted, and probably would never have gone away to war had not his plow snapped in two. It was after this incident that he rode the horse to the barn and told his father he was going to enlist, and did.

$47,000 LOAN FOR SCHOOLS OK'D BY BOARD

Clerk's Warning That Schools Nearly 'Broke' Fails to Worry Members.

Mansfield board of education members who voted last night to borrow $47,093 against a future allocation of state school funds, refused to take seriously the warnings of Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk, that the board would be "broke" before the end of January.

The action taken at last night's meeting was imperative, since the board has only $7,000 in its general fund and $9,266 in the bond retirement fund, Dr. Bristor said.

The loan will leave approximately $20,000 in the general fund at the beginning of 1938, Supt. W. L. Miller estimated. After that, finances will have to take care of themselves, board members said, because there will be little the board can do about the situation.

Bristor said there is no assurance that the city's schools will receive any more state money until the middle of February. The board, however, will be able to obtain an advance on the real estate tax collection about Feb. 1, it was believed, and will receive some funds about Jan. 15 from the distribution of personal taxes.

$196,000 Borrowed This Year.

Bristor produced figures to show that the board has been forced to borrow $196,661 so far this year in anticipation of funds from the state which have been delayed at every distribution.

Interest on the loans totaled $1,871, all of which was paid from the board's own funds, he pointed out. All loans, except one authorized last night, have been retired with cash allocations from the state.

"For several years now we have heard predictions of financial difficulties ahead from Dr. Bristor, but we have always come through in pretty good shape," Harold W. Arlin, president of the board, said. "The clerk (Bristor) has us just two jumps ahead of the sheriff at every meeting, but I'm for worrying about the situation when we get to it."

Supt. Miller pointed out at last night's sesison that in Richland county, where the percentage of decrease in sales tax collections this year is low, total 1937 funds received from that source to Nov. 13 were $495,661 as compared with $506,496 in the same period last year.

The shortage, which is more marked in other parts of the state, is the chief cause of the failure of the Ohio schools foundaton program to provide ample funds for schools, he said.

Allows Funds for Classes.

The board allowed $312 for paying teachers of the night school classes at Senior high school, where 52 persons are receiving instruction in machine shop practice, auto mechanics and drawing and mathematics. The classes are taught by V. H. Oberlander, H. R. Kinker and H. C. Miller of the vocational staff.

Supt. Miller said a class in acetylene welding will be added if the necessary equipment can be obtained without cost to the board of education. The board is reimbursed by the state department of education for expenditures for the night school courses.

The Richland County High School Athletic association was granted permission by the board to use the Senior high gymnasium for the county basketball tournament late in February. At the suggestion of J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, the board increased the rental from $60 to $75 to cover an additional evening's use of the gymnasium.

The county association requested the gymnasium for three evenings and one afternoon instead of the customary two evenings and one afternoon.

Permission also was granted the City "A" basketball league to use the gymnasium one night a week during the cage season at a rental rate of $5 per night.

Federal Board Clears Mellon of Income Tax Fraud

GIVES RULING ON $3,000,000 EVASION SUIT

Amount of Ex-Treasury Head's Tax Deficiency Remains to Be Determined.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States board of tax appeals overruled today a major portion of the government's $3,075,103 tax claim against the late Andrew W. Mellon.

The decision said "petitioner (Mellon) did not file a false and fraudulent return with intention to evade taxes."

The board ruled for Mellon on six out of ten principal points, compromised a seventh point, and ruled for the government on the other three.

Amount Not Mentioned.

The decision, which discussed only the legal interpretation of a score of issues, gave no figures on what tax deficiency, if any, the estate of the former secretary of the treasury will have to pay.

Mellon's lawyers, however, won a deduction for the cost of five priceless paintings which Mellon gave to his charitable and educational trust and which have since been donated to the federal government.

The Mellon estate now is building a national museum of art in Washington to house more than fifty famous paintings the ex-cabinet officer gave to the government before his death last summer at the age of 82

Most of the other issues in the dispute about Mellon's 1931 taxes dealt with securities transactions for which Mellon claimed exemptions.

The tax board's decision, which can be contested in the courts either by the treasury or the Mellon estate, makes another step in litigation which has been pending since March 29, 1934.

Charges False Return.

The government filed the tax claim with the contention that Mellon's gross income in 1931 was $13,482,660 whereas he had listed a gross income of $6,753,707 in making his tax return.

Points of dispute were whether his deductions for losses sales of stock in the Pittsburgh Coal company, Western Public Service company and other companies were allowable, and whether he should be allowed to make deductions for the gift of paintings to the A. W. Mellon charitable and educational trust.

The government contended an additional tax of $2,050,068 was due and also claimed a 50 per cent penalty, bringing the total to $3,075,103.

Warm or Freezing, Weatherman Gets The Blame Anyway

CLEVELAND—(AP)—"Blow, blow, thou winter wind, thou art not so unkind—" as perhaps the ingratitude of the Cleveland Weather bureau's anonymous correspondent.

Forecaster Ralph C. Mize has a file of letters belaboring the bureau for prevailing weather, and all apparently from one disconsolate author.

The correspondence, Mize said, dates from 1934. Excerpts include:

"May 5, 1935—What kind of a monkey business is this? It's supposed to be springtime weather, no cold. It's neough of this here lousy weather what you are giving, so now snap out of it and put warmer days in."

The anonymous one really lost patience some time later:

"June 11, 1937—What in hell you call this lousy weather, summer or fall? Somebody is sick in the head up here and don't know what he's doing. Get busy."

2 BROTHERS OF 'RIDE' VICTIM TESTIFY TODAY

Jurors Seek to Find Out If 'Happy' Marino's Release Was 'Bought.'

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Two brothers of Roy "Happy" Marino, slain Youngstown gangster and paroled convict, were to testify today before the special grand jury investigating Ohio's parole and pardon system.

The brothers of the late racketeer are Andy Marino, associated with a motor sales firm, and Rocco Marino, taxicab operator. Both are reputable business men.

Marino was taken for a gangland "ride" last September. His murder was unsolved.

The grand jury is attempting to learn whether Marino's parole was "bought." He served 14 months of a 20-years-to-life sentence for the robbery of the Louisville branch of a Canton bank.

Denies False Testimony.

The name of Arch W. Naylor, alleged parole "broker," was linked with the Marino parole in a recent newspaper expose. Naylor, now held in the Zanesville jail, testified before the special grand jury last week and was accused by Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy of not telling the whole truth. Naylor denied that he had given false testimony.

Marino was released, his family said, because Charles Kent, now in the New Jersey state prison, confessed to the bank robbery for which Marino was convicted.

The grand jury yesterday inspected Ohio penitentiary and ate lunch there. The grand jury is expected to report on prison conditions when it completes it work.

Among those who testified yesterday were Louis Vandervort, London prison farm convict from Jamestown, O.; John Boggs, sentenced to live imprisonment from Hillsboro for murder; W. F. Amrine, London, who resigned as superintendent of the London prison farm in 1935, and John Jones, sentenced from Youngstown.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The "Don't Irritate" Idea.

THIS "hush, hush, don't irritate him" stuff which, through various channels, and inspired by the little group of conservatives among the presidential intimates, is now coming out of Washington, is pretty close to the limit. Certainly, it is not flattering to the president and anything but a tribute to the intelligence of the people.

The essence of the idea is this—it is true a grave situation exists, brought about partly by unwise New Deal legislation and partly by the fear among business men of what Mr. Roosevelt may do to them next. But, whatever they may think or say privately, on no account must industrial leaders or organizations intimate that the Roosevelt policies are unsound or that the responsibility for the depression is his. On the contrary, they must co-operate with the president in every possible manner, avoid any form of criticism, not attempt to thwart him in any direction and keep clear of hints that his political philosophy is half baked or the beneficial results of his course negligible.

AND IT IS NOT only business men who are thus advised not to irritate the president by disagreeing or opposing him now. The same advice is tendered newspapers and radio commentators. In brief, there comes from the "inner circle" word that if all those not favorable to the president want to avert general disaster, they had better nurse Mr. Roosevelt very carefully indeed. At the moment his disposition, it is said, is toward the sound things that have been urged, but if there is any "name calling," why then, look out. He may get mad and kick everything to pieces.

STRANGE as it may seem, that is an accurate account of what we are now being told in various ways. In so many words, it is declared that if Mr. Roosevelt is made resentful by criticism, he will drop at once his effort to balance the budget and go in for another orgy of spending, sure to hasten crude inflation and national ruin. This is an extraordinary thing to say about a president, but it is being said—and not by his enemies but by his friends. They point out that he has among his advisers men who are against the capitalistic system and want to see it collapse. These tell him it is not worth saving. These tell him that business hates him, and all are prepared, if in a few months the slump continues, to say, "Well, private industry had its chance but it wouldn't co-operate. Now the government will have to take over." And at once Mr. Roosevelt will be off at a gallop in their direction, dragging the country behind him and ending up God knows where.

ACTUALLY, this is what is being threatened. In various forms, it has appeared in various papers within the last week. When these solemn warnings are read and it is realized that they come direct from close friends of Mr. Roosevelt, it is impossible not to be shocked at the strangeness of the counsel. And it is impossible, too, to credit the correctness of the analysis. Has the president of the United States got to be treated like a spoiled child? Is it necessary to suppress all criticism to avoid sending him off into a destructive tantrum? Confronted by a crisis, must it be dealt with by hypocritically yes, yessing the president lest in a fit of anger he deliberately wreck the nation? Is the man's vanity such that, unless his face is saved by the insincere truckling of his foes, he will refuse to correct his manifest mistakes and tear down the temple instead?

THE ARGUMENT is silly. His most caustic and consistent critics have not painted as contemptible a picture of Mr. Roosevelt as it portrayed by these dear friends of his, who seek to convey the notion that he is capable of doing things which he knows to be ruinous purely out of rancor and resentment. It makes him out an exceedingly small and vindictive man. That's what this "hush, hush, don't irritate him" campaign means if it means anything. It would seem natural for the president to resent these implications far more than any degree of honest criticism.

THE SITUATION isn't going to be saved by smothering criticism or by inducing the opposition to muffle its convictions and practice insincerity. There never has been a time when Mr. Roosevelt could not have gotten plenty of co-operation from both industrial and journalistic opponents in any effort to balance the budget. He can get it now and it isn't necessary to plead with them. They are not only willing but intensely eager to co-operate if given the chance. But to ask them to cheer Mr. Roosevelt while he nullifies with one hand the gestures he makes with the other is a little too much. And to urge his critics, for fear of irritating him into new recklessness in the spending line, not to point out the dangerous nature of the two great bills he is now trying to force through congress, is simply absurd. If he is, as these friends imply, so petty as to be capable of discarding his professed principles and precipitate a great national disaster, because of personal resentment—if that is the kind of man he is—then there is nothing for the country to hope for from him anyhow and the sooner it finds it out and turns to congress the better.

FLORIDA BURNS SMUDGE FIRES

Mercury Drops to 27 Degrees In Fruit Areas; Growers Survey Damage.

LAKELAND, Fla. —(AP)— The most severe cold wave of the season tumbled temperatures throughout Florida early today and forecasters said some fruit and vegetable damage was inevitable.

Hopes were high that growers' precautions had held losses to a low figure but fruit men said it would be ten days before any accurate check could be made.

Smudge fires were general in north and central Florida citrus groves. Tender vegetables were given protective coverings of straw, paper, cloth and even earth.

Early reports indicated the lower east coast had escaped freezing temperatures. But at Lakeland, in the Polk county citrus area, a low of 27 degrees was recorded, and near Orlando, another citrus center, 25 degrees.

The state experiment station at Belle Glade reported a heavy frost.

First temperature reports reaching the frost warning service showed minimums of 28 at Tampa, 36 at Fort Myers, 20 at the Jacksonville airport, 28 at the Daytona Beach airport, 26 at the Titusville airport, 37 at West Palm Beach, 32 at Vero beach and 36 at Miami.

WELLES WARNS FOREIGN POWERS

Interference In American Republics Won't Be Tolerated.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Foreign nations were warned today by Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles that unwarranted interference in the affairs of American republics would be countered with "appropriate action."

Speaking at the inauguration of a new inter-American center at George Washington university last night, Welles deplored efforts of American and foreign propagandists to misrepresent political tendencies in the western hemisphere.

In an implied defense of the new Vargas regime in Brazil, Welles charged that editorial writers and others attempted, before the true facts were known, to pin the Fascist label on the Brazilian government.

LABOR BOARD CHIEFTAINS GET ISSUE ON 'FREEDOM OF PRESS'

STEUBENVILLE —(AP)— Attorneys of the national labor board passed on to their chiefs in Washington today the next move in the "freedom of the press" controversy growing out of the Weirton Steel company hearing.

They asked Chairman J. Warren Madden to decide what action should be taken against Hartley W. Barclay, Trade Magazine editor, and two Pittsburgh advertising executives, who defied subpoenas of the board.

In New York, Barclay declared the subpoena infringed upon the freedom of the press.

The attorneys demanded to know where Barclay had obtained material for an article in "mill and factory" in which he characterized the Wierton inquiry a "colossal burlesque," a "curse of democracy," and a "silly waste of money."

The issue developed during the 17-week-long hearing into charges of unfair labor practices against the subsidiary of National steel

Isadore Polier, board counsel, charged George and Carlton Ketchum, heads of an advertising firm retained by National Steel, with distributing reprints of Barclay's article.

Polier, in a nine-page formal motion stated that he wanted to question Barclay to determine whether the steel company:

1—Paid for the printing of Barclay's article.

2—Paid for reprints which Polier asserted were distributed to Weirton mill workers.

3—Dictated the tone and facts of the editorial.

Polier said he did not want to invade the freedom of the press, adding:

"But if this document . . . . would interfere with the rights of employes—then its calculated use by the Weirton Steel company may be shown by the testimony of whoever has knowledge thereof."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When Sonja Henie has gone to lunch, when the ice ballet and the crew have deserted the sound stage and rink, Eddie Hoffman steps from the sidelines into purposeful art.

You wouldn't pick Eddie from the laboring crowd as an unique fellow, but he is. He's this town's one and only ice-hole filler.

In the temporarily deserted stage Eddie puts on skates, takes a tall cup of water in his hand, and steps on the rink, master of all he surveys. For his own satisfaction and as a non-utilitarian flourish any man might give to his job, he executes a few turns and whirls around the rink. Then, perhaps realizing that (unlike Miss Henie) he is a lone skater whirling in the wilderness, he starts to work.

* * *

He skims over the ice, bending low and scanning the skate-scarred surface. Here is an immense rink stretching the length of the stage, pitted and scarred by the art of Sonja and her ballet. It is Eddie's job to see that all these miniature craters are filled and smoothed by the time Sonja returns from lunch.

Moving himself slowly in a crouching position, Eddie carefully measures out a tiny stream of water into the first hole. His manner is that of an analytical chemist pouring drops of precious chemical into a test tube. He knows just the right amount to pour. Because water expands in volume as it freezes, he does not fill to the top, nor does he put in too little. . . . In half an hour his work is done. Then he sits on the sidelines, looking raptly at the rink as though he can actually hear the water freeze into ice.

* * *

Later three men with scrapers appear and add the final smoothing touches. But by now Eddie Hoffman has gone — as though watching such crude labor were beneath him. What happens to Eddie the rest of the day is not reported. But just before 6 o'clock, when the company is ready to leave for the day, he can be seen loitering around the rink. He waits until everyone has gone, and then, skates on his feet and cup in hand, he again demonstrates his art.

Deanna Durbin is being directed by Norman Taurog, instead of Henry Koster, in "Mad About Music." Koster made her first two films, and was sought for the third. But he wants to demonstrate what he can do in a picture minus the child wonder.

Should Girl Keep Home For Father

By VIRGINIA LEE

How much of one's life should be "sacrificed" to care for aged parents, and how much one should insist upon being "free" to plan for one's future is always a delicate question and a hard one to answer.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am a girl in my early twenties, the last daughter of a large family left at home. My mother passed away recently, leaving an empty place in our home There is just my dad, married brother and myself at home.

"My father wanted me to give up my position and stay home and keep house, which I have done. I just feel as if I have no one to live for now. My dad is deaf, which makes him rather hard to get along with. My mother was a great peace-maker.

"I have always wanted to get out of town and mix with new people, but I didn't want to leave mother. Now I'm free. My sisters, who are happily married, tell me I should stay and keep the home together. Don't you think I should look after my future? When dad dies I will be an old maid—maybe on their hands

"I get very little pleasure in this town, so you see I am torn between my dad and my future Would you kindly advise me what you think I should do?

"TROUBLED."

I love your sisters being so sure you should stay at home and "keep the home together." They are "kidding" themselves into thinking it is their father's welfare they are concerned about, when, if they would be honest with themselves, they would have to acknowledge that they want to shift all responsibility for his well-being on to your shoulders A deaf old father would not add to the harmony of their homes. And then, of course, too, he is much happier in his own home So far they are right about the matter.

If you give up your present job of taking care of your dad, however, would the others, your brothers and sisters, be willing that you should be left enough of the estate when your dad goes to take care of you? There is no use shutting one's eyes to the fact that it will probably be harder for you to fit into the business world after a few years, although that old-fashioned bunk about "old maids" is outmoded.

Would your father be happy in a home of any kind, where he would have good care and be with people his own age? And another thing, could you be happy if you thought your old dad was not—if he was in a home where he did not fit, or passed around among your brothers and sisters? Happiness does not come from dodging our responsibilities and being "free," I have come to find out. You would no more be "free" in a strange city, worrying about your father left at home or living with people who don't want him, than you are right at home.

I do think there is stimulation in going away and meeting new people and seeing new scenes, but you will find the new folk are just the same underneath as the old lot, and one can get a lot of fun and pleasure right in the old home town if we look for it. I think you should have a family confab, with your case considered seriously from your point of view.

Candied Sweet Potatoes
Mashed Irish Potatoes
Hominy Croquettes
Cranberry Sauce or Jelly
Pickles Celery
Pumpkin or Mince Pie
Cheese Coffee

A reader has requested the recipe for roasting young pig, so I thought some of my other readers might like it, too, and decide to serve it for Thanksgiving this year, in place of turkey. The instructions are taken from Fanny Farmer's cook book.

Today's Recipe.

LITTLE ROAST PIG — Clean, stuff, truss and skewer a suckling pig. Make four parallel gashes three inches long through skin on each side of backbone. Put on rack in dripping pan, brush entire surface with melted butter, sprinkle with salt, pour two cups of boiling water around it and cover with buttered paper. Roast in hot oven three hours, basting every 15 minutes with liquid in pan. Remove paper after cooking two and one-half hours, and brush over with heavy cream. Remove to serving dish, put small red apple in mouth, cranberries in eye sockets and laurel wreath around neck. Garnish with nest-shaped hominy croquettes filled with apple ball sauce, sections of red apples and watercress. I have quoted so far from Mrs. Farmer's book. I would recommend that a regular turkey or chicken stuffing be used, your favorite stuffing, in other words. I like a little sage with pork, and usually sprinkle my roast pork with it. You can do as you like about the hominy croquettes, serving hominy in the usual way, if you prefer, and you may not be able to get watercress, so that can be omitted, also the wreath, or you can use any greens on hand for the latter They do look pretty. Mrs Farmer's stuffing is much like mine, and is as follows:

STUFFING—Six onions, twenty sage leaves (dried,) three cups stale bread crumbs, one-half cup soft butter, one egg, salt and pepper. Peel onions, adding boiling water to cover and parboil ten minutes. Add sage leaves and cook two minutes longer, then drain off water Finely chop onions and sage and add to bread crumbs, with butter and egg slightly beaten. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SQUEEZING A PAIR

EVERY PLAYER should know the identifying marks of the standard double squeeze play, which should be made much oftener than actually does occur. First, the squeezer must have a card on which nobody can follow suit. Second he must have a singleton of another suit which is lower than a singleton at his right. Third, he must have a card of the next suit which can be led to the top outstanding card in the opposite hand. That top card must have with it a small one which either opponent can beat with a guarded card. Also, in that hand must be a singleton in the hand which plays just before it With that situation, when the player lays down the card on which nobody else can follow suit, both opponents are hopelessly squeezed

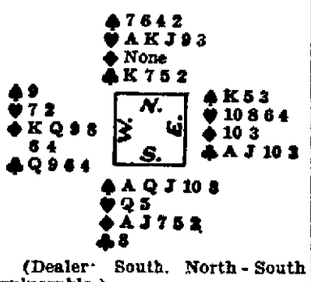

(Dealer South. North-South vulnerable.)

Against South's contract of 7-Clubs West led the heart 10, which declarer won with the A. The clubs A and Q were now cashed, followed by the spades A and K and a spade ruff Next the declarer cashed the heart A and the diamond A. With the heart Q placed in the East hand from the original lead, and with West probably holding the spade Q, South now proceeded to force each opponent to unguard the diamonds in order to retain the winning spade held by one and the winning heart by the other.

After running the remainder of his trumps, he had West squeezed down to the spade Q and the diamonds J-6 and East with the heart Q and the diamonds Q-10. On the last club each opponent let go a diamond, so that the K-7 in dummy won the last two tricks.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer South. North-South vulnerable.)

With the club 4 led against South's 6-Spade contract, how should South plan the hand?

It is easier to put cheese to be used in creamed or escalloped mixtures through the food chopper instead of grating it.

Go To Expert For Properly Bleached Hair

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

Way back in the 15th century in Italy, a popular beautician discovered a formula whereby dark locks could be transformed to a golden-blond hue In those days, blonds were as scarce—and just as highly preferred by gentlemen as they are today.

Today natural blonds are just about as rare as they were then, but as any lovely natural blond will tell you, bottle blonds are plentiful. As a matter of fact, there are 90 per cent more artificial blonds in the U. S. A. than natural ones.

However, all the bleached blond tresses one sees are not in the best of condition. Some girls have hair that is all colors of the rainbow, and as a rule, they are the victims of amateurish or unskilled bleaching. Hair is given a vari-colored effect through improper bleaching. It is usually dark at the roots, and graduates through various brassy shades to a colorless yellow. Needless to say, this effect is anything but attractive Employ an Expert.

It is for this reason, and also because poorly-bleached or over bleached hair tends to take on a strawy harshness and brittleness, that bottle blonds sometimes become disgusted with their tresses, but they don't quite know how to go about restoring their hair to its original shade, and so they continue the harmful bleaching treatments and add insult to injury.

When a dark-haired lass decides to make her locks the hue that gentlemen allegedly prefer, the wisest course is for her to go to a reliable beauty salon and have the bleaching done by an expert. Fine-textured hair reacts differently to bleaches than coarse hair, you know, and an expert will know just what strength to make the bleach for your particular type of hair.

Bleached hair, you know, is most unattractive when it is growing in to its natural color. And you'll find your crowning glory anything but a beauty asset during that entire growing-in period.

If a girl bleaches her hair to an ugly or streaky blond hue, and wishes to restore it to its natural color, she just has to wait for the bleached portion of her hair to grow out. A bleach, you see, does not color the hair, but, rather, removes color. It is not something that can be washed out. So, if she is permitting her bleached hair to grow out, and doesn't want the embarrassment of going about with two different shades of hair, she can go to a reliable beauty shop and have the bleached portion of her hair dyed back to its original color.

If the dyeing is done by a skilled and reliable operator, the bleached portion can be colored to perfectly match the natural shade. And the bleached hair can then be permitted to grow out without there being any unattractive variance in shade apparent.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

KATIE'S COMMENT about Dicky's probable suspicions concerning the clutch accident so disconcerted me that I hurried my exit from the kitchen, waiting only to "save face" with an iteration of my caution against voicing her own "dee- ductions" concerning it. And I was conscious of an uneasy feeling during my wait for the return of my husband and Jim, caused partly by Katie's words but mostly by the memory of the odd inflection in Dicky's voice when he referred to "Old Man Coincidence."

I knew that he held no brief for Philip Veritzen, but I also knew that he had rather conservative regard for the property of others, and that sabotage of any kind would be entirely alien to his ideas. Just what his reaction would be to the scheme I had concocted, I could not guess, but I feared his disapproval, and scored myself for thinking that I could get away with the plan without his finding out about it.

For a little while I roamed restlessly about the house, and then, realizing that it would be but a few minutes before the return of Dicky with Jim, I took refuge in my bedroom, childishly postponing the hour of reckoning.

But I might have known that there was no counting on any delay in settling an issue where Dicky was concerned. It was less than five minutes after I heard his car come into the yard that his knock sounded on my door, and I had heard his voice inquiring my whereabouts before that.

"Come in," I called, trying to make my voice nonchalant, but I was far from easy in my mind as he strode across the threshold and towered above my chair, looking down at me with a sardonic grin.

"Jim isn't a clever liar," he said, and then stopped as if waiting for a comment.

Suddenly, I lost my nervousness, and a little devil of defiance danced into my soul.

Dicky Is Amused.

"And just what," I asked coolly, "am I supposed to comment upon that? I never have known Jim to lie, cleverly or otherwise Has he been telling you fairy stories?"

His lips twitched and a gleam of amusement crept into his eyes.

"He tried to tell me one," he said. "A cock and bull yarn about the clutch going flooey while he was taking the car down to the garage to have it serviced. But lying isn't his specialty, any more than deceit is yours. Both of you are too, too transparent.

"Better 'fess up, old Dear. You planned that sabotage on Noel's car, didn't you? Jim never would have dared to try a trick like that unless he had been given authority to do it. And, of course, he'd go through hell and high water if you told him to travel that way."

"Of course, I planned it," I said coolly. "I didn't know just how a car could be wrecked, without costing too much to have it fixed, so I asked Jim. He not only suggested the clutch job, but insisted upon doing it himself."

Madge Relieved.

"The Lord knows you've had experience enough riding clutches to do the job up brown'" my husband gibed. "But for a quick job Jim was a much better bet. Of course, I ought to order you into the brig, but I've got such a yen to have Phil Veritzen get his come-uppance, even if in so slight a fashion, that I think I'll order you a medal instead."

I drew a quick, sibilant breath of relief.

"Oh, I'm so glad, Dicky," I said. "I was afraid you'd be dreadfully disapproving."

"I am, in my haid," he drawled, "but my heart jest nacherly swings me around the other way. But light of my life, have you considered just how many varieties of merry hell old Phil Veritzen is going to sling around here when he gets the news that Noel's not coming home as per the schedule outlined?"

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Dec. 8.

A DAY of doubtful, if not precarious, conditions is the augury based on lunar and mutual aspects of ruling planets. While employment is under fair promise, yet there are certain signs of disruptive matters, suddenly precipitated, which would prove disastrous if managed with rashness, haste and lack of careful consideration.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the propitious outcome of unsettled events depends on cautious, diplomatic and sagacious grasp of devastating situations. Reckless, hasty, impetuous and quarrelsome behavior would prove decidedly hazardous.

A child born on this day may have diversified talents, being original and practical, but it may be too energetic, impulsive and aggressive. It should succeed in constructive work.

APPLE BALL SAUCE—Wipe apples, pare and shape into balls, using a French vegetable cutter or a melon ball cutter. There should be one and one-half cups. Make syrup by boiling one cup sugar, three-fourths cup water, six cloves, and three or four thin shavings from the rind of a lemon, seven minutes Remove cloves and rind, add one-third of the balls and cook until soft; repeat twice. Cook syrup until reduced one-half and pour over balls.

Raisins used in puddings and cakes may be made plump by covering with cold water bringing to boiling point and boiling five minutes. Use liquid raisins are boiled in for cakes and sauces.

My Neighbor Says:

Young, growing plants require re-potting when they have formed a "root ball," or close net-work of roots around the inside of the pot. To find out if they are ready, knock the plant out of the pot by placing the stem between the index and second finger of the left hand, inverting the pot and knocking the rim rather sharply against the edge of a bench or an old chair. The ball of soil will come out of the pot most readily when it is quite moist. Never cut it out with a knife, as this injures many roots.
